Contests Develop in North County for School Boards

More than 100 persons are seeking election to 74 positions at stake on various school boards in the April 17 elections in San Mateo County.

A total of 127 candidates had filed for ballot positions by the 5 p.m. deadline Friday.

Most districts have contests where incumbents are being challenged, or where they are not running for re-election.

In the San Mateo Junior College District, incumbents Robert A. Tarver and Francis W. Pearson Jr., both are seeking re-election, and are being challenged by three opponents.

State law requires that it is necessary to fill the positions by election, separately from the four-year term for the posts.

In Brisbane, the unexpired term of James L. Moore is at stake, and in the Sequoia District, the position of Philip Schneider is at stake. Both men have resigned because they have moved out of their respective districts, and the terms of Jack E. Webber (short-term, 2 months) — Patricia Clark, Michael P. Lyons, Patrick W. Bell, Jack E. Webber.

Although reportedly a good swimmer, Allen tired and had stopped to rest. The sheriff's office helicopter crew said they didn't think he could be picked up by them, or a Coast Guard helicopter called in for backup. A sheriff's diver who swam out to Allen reported back that the swimmer was cold and scared, according to Fire Capt. Gary Kennedy.

Savage School: Background Of Controversy in JESD

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Construction of the seventh and eighth-grade school facility in the St. Francis Heights section of Daly City may soon get underway after a seven-year delay.

School administrators have estimated the total cost at $1.8 million. Bids will reflect what these costs will actually be.

If there are any cost overruns, and bond money now deposited in the bank trickles out before completion. Superintendent Frank L. Greenwood of the Jefferson Elementary School District (JESD) has indicated additional funds may have to come from the district's operating expense coffers.

This has caused much criticism among the district's certificated personnel who have not had a pay raise in some time. Classroom Teachers' Association President Jim Cannon points out:

The criticism and unrest centering around the school is not new to the district. Strong criticism was voiced by some taxpayers when the matter first came to public attention more than a decade ago.

One of the strongest allegations of that era was what was labeled "improper development" of the site. Opponents did not like the location or costs.

He was instrumental in working out details on the lease-purchase plan for the award-failure" and they charged the person who leaked the matter to the public through the press was Personnel Director David Pia.

Mr. Pia had breached the confidence existing between the Board and Mrs. Armstrong, the letter, signed by John L. Hayes, field representative for the CSEA, stated.

conjunction with the grading of the school site.

The total acreage prior to grading improvements was some 20 acres, which was narrowed down to approximately 18 acres of "usable" land after site grading.

Dan Coleman and Associates, original engineers for the JESD, had drawn up plans for a 14.7-acre school site but those plans were revised on June 6, 1966, by architect Angus McSweeney, long time architect for the district.

The undeveloped canyon and general terrain of the JESD site was similar in many respects to that of the JUHSD. However, total costs for the grading and filling differed greatly.

While the high school paid $37,000 an acre for a developed site, the elementary district paid some $37,000 an acre for its parcel, plus another $35,000 for filling and grading. By agreeing to purchase the area undeveloped, the JESD spent an additional $15,000 an acre more than the high school district.

Frank Greenwood was appointed superintendent of the JESD in September, 1965, and was saddled with the school site in the midst of a building slump. The district has never fully recovered from that slump, although Greenwood now recommends going ahead with (Please See Page 2, Column 1)

Correction

And while the district was recipient of this criticism over development policies, less than a mile away the Jefferson Union High School District was making strides toward completion of its Serramonte facility.

The fact that both were institutions of learning was about the only thing the facilities had in common.

For example, the cost of preparing the St. Francis Heights site was far higher than the cost for engineering and filling the nearby JUHSD area.

JESD bought the land for its school in three parcels — undeveloped.

The largest purchase was from the Suburban Realty Company (owners of Serramonte) in July, 1964 ($547,540); the Zita Corporation land was bought in June, 1964 ($35,270.50) and also in June, 1964, the remainder was purchased from Stolte Inc. ($24,952).

There were other owners of property in the canyon. Their land would be filled in

Greenwood Might Ask Savage Bid Rejection

Jefferson Elementary School District Supt. Frank Greenwood is expected to ask the Board of Trustees to reject all bids for construction of the proposed seventh and eighth grade school at its regular meeting tonight.

The public meeting will start at 8 p.m. in the City Hall council chambers, 90th and Sullivan Avenues, Daly City.

There were three bids received on the project which has stirred a minor controversy in the community and also outspoken criticism among some board members.

Trustees Dorothy Adams and Beverly Forrester, the two women members of the five member board, have vigorously opposed the construction on the ground the city's student population is on the decline and the facility should be built in another section — not the St. Francis Heights area.

The bids submitted were opened on February 15 at 3:30 p.m., Greenwood said.

With all options deducted the costs still exceeded the budgetary amounts, it was pointed out.

The district has budgeted $1.8 million for the school. These monies are now available from the sale of bonds passed by voters several years ago.

Representatives of the San Mateo County District Attorney's Office, counsel for the Board, will discuss findings of a panel of inquiry recently conducted in the district concerning matters surrounding a classified employee.

The JESD board at that time accepted the single bid on the job submitted by Sunset Grading and Equipment Company on the site shortly after.

The canyon was extremely deep and difficult to fill. Site engineer Schulhauser, also head of Sunset Grading in addition to being a civil engineer for the Suburban Realty Company which was in the process of building Serramonte, had to import almost 500,000 cubic yards of fill material from near- by Serramonte development and also relocate a main PG&E transmission line at the bottom of the canyon.

The heavy equipment sub-contracted from Arthur "Buzz" Haskins, who did not bid on the project, resembled tiny ants working at the bottom of a pit when the project started.

The school district paid Sunset

Grading Company $0.45 per cuic yard for imported fill material — that dirt hauled from other areas and not immediately available.

According to a progress report, Haskins revealed at that time that he was paid $0.41 per cubic yard of fill.

mentary projects were among the biggest land fill projects of that time, costing millions of dollars and requiring thousands of manhours.

Prior to this preparation the area was steep canyons unsuitable for any construction.

194-Home Tract Planned in Pacifica

A plan for a 194-home development in the Cozzolino quarry site, adjacent to San Bruno's Pacific Heights on Sharp Park Road and Skyline College, has been presented to the Pacifica Planning Commission.

This plan and a second home development, nine single-family homes on Beaumont Boulevard and Gordon Way in Fairmont Park, scheduled for Tuesday's meeting of the Planning Commission, will be continued from that meeting, planner Jim Miller disclosed.

The 194-home development will be townhouses, located on an almost level 20-acre site. The two-story homes will be largely two bedrooms, and two-bedroom plus den arrangements. A total of 500 persons, including 70 children, are estimated for the development by the planning department. The homes will be so oriented that every one will have a view of the ocean and the hills. Recreation facilities, tennis courts and a pool will round out the development.

Several items will remain for decision, however, which are expected to arouse some controversy.

Planners will consider a reviewed development plan filed by Michael A. Darrin for construction of 64 apartment units on Palmetto Avenue. This project would be located at the extreme north end of Pacifica, near the edge of a high cliff.

Councilmen had previously expressed their unhappiness over the appearance of the project would present to the street. In order to provide a beautiful vis-

Permit for Linda Mar Shop Mall

Linda Mar may have at least one new shopping center by the end of the year.

It will be a neighborhood center, located on Oddstad and Terra Nova Boulevards.

A $197,400 building permit has been issued to construct the shell of the closed mall. Subsequent building permits will be issued as each new store is constructed within the shell building.

The center, to be built as an extension of the Safeway Market already there, will be 28,200 square feet, including a 5700-foot mall area.

Marybury-Churchill Associates of San Jose are the architects.

Meanwhile, a public hearing for issuing a permit for site development for an office building in the same shopping center will be held at Tuesday's meeting of the Planning Commission.

Walker and Lee wants to erect a building right on the corner which would contain the office of Eureka Square Savings and Loan Co., a real estate office and an insurance firm.

Daly City Whittles Renewal Proposal

The Daly City Council, acting neutral, but the council, obviously as the community's Redevelopment Agency, has approved a plan to whittle down project area around the new Bay Area Rapid Transit terminus station.

In a rare 4-1 split of the board before an audience of 200 persons at City Hall this week, a smaller area than originally proposed by a 25-member citizens' advisory committee was passed on to the city's Planning Commission.

The planners are expected to formally approve the plan set in motion in the next step for redevelopment of the area bounded by the San Mateo-San Francisco county line, Vista Grande Avenue, the so-called "Crocker Tract" east of Mission Street, and a long sliver of commercial properties extending almost the full length of Mission Street.

Advisors had envisioned a more ambitious scope for redevelopment plan. His condemnation of the redevelopment plan raised cheers from many spectators at the meeting — primarily opponents of redevelopment.

Giammona, who has refrained from taking action during past projects in the area, had owned more ambitious scope for redevelopment, but the council, obviously bowing to mounting pressures, recommended a far larger development zone. Hupf said he felt the compromise would be stimulative and functional.

On the advice of City Attorney Al Polonsky, Giammona did not take any action connected with this project.

His failure to go along with the other councilmen on the re-development program came as a surprise to City Hall watchers. There had been no prior indication of this split.

Giammona said in his estimation in the city was based entirely on the success of the BART. And the rapid transit system had not proved it would stimulate any great building boom anywhere in the Bay Area.

Too much was at stake on the mere assumption that BART would pave the way for this resurgence of construction, he said.

But Hupf's plan passed. It consists of some 30 per cent publicly owned lands; 27 per cent residential lands; another 22 per cent zoned commercial along Mission Street, and the remainder undeveloped (Crocker).

The Advisory Committee had recommended a far larger development zone. Hupf said he felt the compromise would be stimulative and functional.

The action of the council was met by vigorous protests from the audience, including long-time opponents of the plan. Conrad Pavella, co-chairman of the Original Daly City Protective Association, Mrs. Dina Matreucci, a homeowner, and the Rev. Hosey Spears.

The Reverend Spears has fought for strong representation for the affected area. If the proposed project passes the Planning Commission, an active advisory committee composed of persons residing within the affected target area must be appointed.

How the council will go about this is not known, pending outcome of the planning commission hearings.

City Planner John Walker has recommended the commissioners schedule public hearings and special meetings on the re-development issues and not lump the talks in with other matters.

Walker said he feels the importance of the redevelopment meetings should not be buried with other matters.

Zones Urged By Planners

The San Mateo County Planning Commission is recommending to the Board of Supervisors that a special zoning be created for certain residential areas on the Coastside to permit boat building for recreational use.

If approved by the board, the special "B" classification would be added to R-1 (single-family residential) zoning on marine-oriented properties to allow a resident to build or store a boat 20 feet in length, or less, if entirely enclosed or screened from the street and adjacent properties.

However, no boats could be built or stored on vacant lots, or in front yard areas. Development of a boat building policy by the planning department was started last year after a number of Coastside residents were cited for violation of the zoning ordinance.

Two men accused of bribery of a police officer in connection with alleged bookmaking activities will be tried together in Redwood City Superior Court April 2.

Defendants are Ronald Sacco, 39, of San Francisco and Attilio Joe Spagnuolo, 41, of Millbrae arrested January 9 following a year-long investigation by the San Mateo County Organized Crime Unit.

They are accused of paying an undercover police agent a total of $800 in bribes.

A motion to have the two men tried separately was denied yesterday by Superior Court Judge Gerald E. Ragan.

A pre-trial conference will be held March 15.

Bank Plans To Be Told In Millbrae

A "curtain wall" bank building of tinted glass exterior will be described to Millbrae planners at their next meeting, or second next.

Planning commissioners last night scheduled the bank building plans for public hearing "at the earliest possible date."

Planners would have scheduled the hearing for their next meeting, February 26, except that they may not be able to get the meeting's legal notice published in time. If not, the hearing will be held March 12.

The glass-walled bank building is planned by Robert Pitch at the westerly edge of the one-time Richmond Square property, adjacent to the city library.

Located in a planned-unit development zone, the building requires complete approval of the city for use, architecture and parking, before it may be built.

Spokesmen for the applicant said the bank building will provide jobs for more than 300 people, and would prove a financial boon to the remainder of the Millbrae Square shopping district and the entire downtown community.

New Traffic Program Saves Money, Lives in San Bruno

Put on a profit-loss ratio, a personal injuries, funerals, doctor bills, lawyers, etc.

program conducted by the San Bruno Police Department during the 1972 year can be said to have saved the city $250,000.

This approximate figure is based on a National Highway Traffic Safety Council formula that says putting all accidents together — from fender benders to fatalities — the average loss is $280 per accident.

Included in this $280 is the cost of insurance, property loss, previous year. This figure multiplied by the $2800 gives $365,800. And subtracting the cost of the program, which was approximately $90,000 from the $365,800, the savings comes to ($255,800) roughly $250,000.

The program, which was 100 percent federally funded (actually $50,000 in federal funds was used, the remainder of the $90,000 is made up of existing personnel and equipment) was worked out with the Stanford Research Institute, and its computers.

It was a two-year pilot program, which expires January 31, 1974, with the city having the option of continuing it by picking up all the financing.

Some impressive statistics are available to help the council make up its mind.

For the period of January 1, 1972, through January 1, 1973, there was in the city of San Bruno an overall 12 per cent reduction in accidents. There was a drop in fatal accidents from 5 in 1971 to 3 in 1972. Total injuries dropped from 126 to 109.

There was a 120 percent increase in drunken driving arrests, from 44 to 97 and a 91 percent increase in issuance of moving citations. Turning violations prompted the writing of the most number of citations.

The most citations were written at the intersection of San Bruno Avenue and El Camino Real, near Camino Plaza, accounting for 1,755 tickets.

Second most citations were written for the intersection of Angus and San Mateo Avenues, with 486; then came the El Camino Real and Sneath Lane intersection, with 450; and the fourth is San Bruno and Huntington Avenue intersection with 450 citations.

For example, the intersection of Huntington and San Bruno Avenue is in the signalization planning stage, as are San Bruno and San Mateo Avenues and the Sneath Lane and El Camino Real intersections. Nothing is planned for the Camino Plaza-San Bruno Avenue intersection.

SSF Gasoline Leak

South San Francisco firemen were seeking the source of a major gasoline leak to day which endangered a large portion of their city for 1½ tense hours last night.

The strong odor of gasoline was first reported by residents of the Antioch Apartments complex and the Mayfair Village neighborhood at 9:30 p.m. Firemen investigated and found large quantities of gasoline floating in Colma Creek, coming from the tributary Twelve-Mile Creek which flows down from the Westborough district through the California Golf Club. The gasoline dissipated by 11:10 p.m.

Firemen have traced the gasoline up to Juniper Serra Boulevard. They suspect that it came from a rupture in the gasoline tank of some service station in Westborough, and are checking them all out.

Some impressive statistics are available to help the council make up its mind.

Mrs. Adams Reviews Pending Legislation

Mrs. Dorothy Adams, incumbent trustee in the Jefferson Elementary School District, has launched her campaign with a statement concerning pending educational legislation.

Mrs. Adams said, "Four major education bills have passed in the last six years that will radically alter the structure, direction and product of public schools in California."

"When these laws are finally implemented and joined together, the result will be a totally new management system. During the campaign activities of this election, I shall attempt to acquaint our community with the importance of these new plans; and to point out some of the choices they have," she said.

Before "Senate Bill 1," the subjects taught in public schools were more or less dictated by the Legislature and State Board of Education.

The "Planning Programming Budgeting System" allows local school districts to establish their own standards of costs and pupil performance. Establishment of required levels of competence for each group of employees has been delegated to local school boards by the Stull Bill.

Assemblyman Greene's new testing bill is designed to report improvement in academic performance resulting from the operation of the first three plans in the management system.

"This noble experiment in total freedom will require at least five years of staff involvement and millions of dollars to implement. The time for the community to exercise local control is now, since we can hardly afford to do it over. The change will be made."

The major question is, will the community participate in deciding what kind of job will be

Achievements Pointed Out By Solomon

Edward Solomon, prominent San Francisco attorney, is a candidate to succeed himself in the Jefferson Union High School District trustee election.

In announcing his decision, Solomon pointed to eight years of accomplishments.

During his tenure of office he served as the board's president on two occasions; participated in the district's most successful bond election and saw three new high schools — Oceana in 1965, Thornton in 1966 and Serramonte in 1968, come into being.

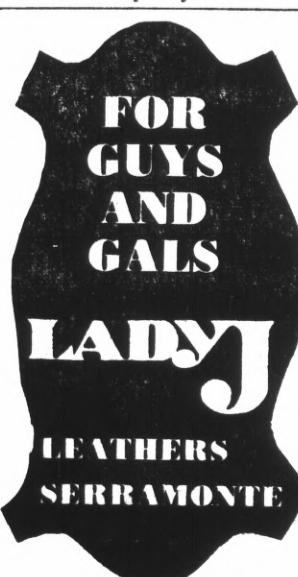

In addition, during his service as a high school trustee, the second addition at Oceana and Terra Nova were completed, as was the district's corporation yard.

Currently the board has under consideration the completion of Terra Nova High School, the second building increment at Serramonte, the construction of a swimming pool at Westmoor plus the erection of large instructional facilities at Oceana and Jefferson High Schools.

When Solomon came on the board in 1965, the district had an enrollment of approximately 6,000 students. This year an enrollment of 8,000 will be registered.

During his eight years, he witnessed all of the high schools being accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges; two schools embarked upon modular scheduling; high school board meetings transferred from district facilities to the Daly City Council chambers; the board entering into an agreement with the Pacifica Youth Service Bureau and numerous education improvements.

Solomon is married and has four grown children. He is a long-time member of the California Alumni Association and the Hastings Law Alumni Association. He and Mrs. Solomon reside in Daly City.

Dealers Accused of Not Honoring Pact

Members of the Peninsula Automobile Dealers Association were accused Thursday night of failing to live up to a previously made agreement to adopt an affirmative action program by hiring members of minority communities.

Thomas L. Taylor, a member of the county's Human Relations Commission and a state labor official, told his fellow commissioners that he has written a letter to Local 1414 of the Machinists Union saying "you fellows can do it all yourself."

Taylor predicated his remarks by saying, "I hate to bring up the saga of the Peninsula Automobile Dealers Association again."

Taylor cautioned, however, that the commission should not yet enter the controversy as it is agreed it was needed.

part of a collective bargaining agreement.

Commissioner Leonard Thomas said he thought the matter was settled three years ago, and suggested that the commission get a copy of the letter from the dealers' association to the union.

"The Peninsula Automobile Dealers' Association has already committed itself," he said.

Taylor said he was not sure exactly what was going on, and suggested the dealers might be "divesting themselves" of any responsibility of implementing the program.

Thomas said when Opportunities Industrialization Center West in Menlo Park set up an apprentice program the dealers agreed it was needed.

Thomas suggested if the dealers back out of their agreement, a survey be made dealership by dealership of the ethnic breakdown of employees.

The commission in effect kicked off two of its members — Fernando Vega and Edward Eastman — for lack of attendance.

Jacobs pointed out that the bylaws of the commission require that a commissioner's seat be declared vacant if he misses more than two meetings in a row without an excuse or fails to attend at least 30 percent of the meetings.

Jacobs agreed they would, indeed, be in trouble with the black community.

The commission went on record as favoring county approval of a school for pre-school aged children at Bay and Marsh of God Church, the Rev. Norval Smith, has been forced to resign. He reported, however, the area of Menlo Park.

Dr. Edward Mandell, vice principal of Ravenswood High School, who said he was speaking as a private citizen, said a survey showed that while there is a need for a facility for 24,000 children in the county, there are pre-schools for only 2600.

The council endorsed the proposal for the school, which will come up before the county planning commission on March 14.

No San Bruno Transit Support

The San Bruno city council declined last week to give any support to an alternative transit system to BART.

W. Scott McGilvray, representing West Bay Railway's proposal as an alternative to BART, spoke to the council.

After McGilvray's remarks, Mayor George Corey noted that "it was interesting. You offered us a lot more information than we had known." He then proceeded on with the next agenda item.

McGilvray had been seeking a more definite action — like a resolution from the city body that would state that his suggested alternate was worth consideration.

He told the council he had made similar presentations to other city bodies, and in Burlingame and San Mateo had been rewarded with such resolutions.

He said he also has received moral support from a management advisory committee comprised of all the city managers in the county.

Probably the crux of the matter was best illustrated by a comment from Councilman Neil Cristal. "I don't know how you're going to get it through, because the powers that be seem to want it another way," he said.

Christal asked whether the $75 million total for the project was an accurate figure, in that there was a question of Southern Pacific owning right-of-way planned for use. He wanted to know if that had been taken into consideration.

McGilvray responded that his organization had intended to propose a lease operation with Southern Pacific, and the reason he mentioned no dollar figure concerning the right-of-way was because, "I can't speak for Southern Pacific."

Later, in response to a citizen's question, McGilvray said he didn't think Southern Pacific "favored the (West Bay Railway) approach, but that doesn't concern us." He said S.P. is "under obligation of the Public Utilities Commission to provide passenger service."

Councilman Tony Govearne charged that "this approach" of McGilvray's was "voted down by the voters of San Mateo County 7 or 8 years ago."

McGilvray contended differently. He said the vote Govearne was referring to was a proposal by the West Bay Transit Authority for a county-wide bus system, and Southern Pacific was not interested at that time either.

"Passports" to outdoor recreation are now available at all first and second-class post offices, Postmaster Vincent P. Murphy has announced.

The Golden Eagle and Golden Age Passports are wallet-size, calendar-year permits which entitle the bearer to general admission to national parks and recreation areas having entrance fees.

The Golden Eagle costs $10 to general admission to parks and recreation areas.

The Golden Age is issued without charge to anyone 62 years of age or older.

Issued by the U.S. Department of the Interior, the cards are particularly useful to families touring the National Park System. Mr. Murphy said, because they trim entry costs.

The Golden Eagle allows the bearer and those with him in a private, noncommercial vehicle the 1973 list of federal entrance fee areas where the passports are valid, also is available at post offices.

Issued nationally, the passports also can be obtained at Forest Service headquarters and National Park Service headquarters in Washington, D.C., National Forest regional offices, national fee parks, and at a number of other federal recreation areas.

S.S.F. Chief Testifies in Firing Case

South San Francisco Police Chief Sal Rosano testified as sole witness in the opening night of what appeared to be the beginning of a long hearing on the firing of Police Officer Keith Fazackerley.

The hearing resumed again on Friday at 6:30 p.m. when Deputy City Attorney John Shaw expected to call as many as a half dozen more witnesses. It lasted five hours Thursday.

Fazackerley was fired after 6½ years of service for alleged failure to carry out his duties. He has received considerable support from his fellow officers and from other city employees.

Attorney Tom Bocci, acting in Fazackerley's behalf, opened the hearing by moving to disqualify Personnel Board member Jack Jones on the basis of bias. Jones submitted a letter to show that he was not biased. Personnel Chairman Richard Battaglia, who conducted the hearing, ruled that Jones was not biased.

Bocci then moved for a summary dismissal to the firing since the board had no jurisdiction because there was no statement of charges against Fazackerley. The board ruled that there was a statement of charges.

In his opening statement, Shaw indicated that the city felt that the role of the board would be either to sustain, reverse or modify the firing of Fazackerley by Rosano, an action in which City Manager Gale Dreisbach concurred.

Shaw announced that the city would introduce substantial evidence to show that Fazackerley had failed to operate at an acceptable standard of performance during the years 1968-72.

COMMENDATION
Colo. — Captain Ronald W. Blake Jr., son of Mrs. Rosella C. Polk, 1492 Ascension Drive, San Mateo, has received the U.S. Air Force Commendation Medal at the U.S. Air Force Academy, Colo.

Captain Blake was decorated for meritorious service as commander of Detachment 3 of the 1200th Support Squadron at Altus AFB, Okla.

Flood, Mud Complaints Swamp Coast Council

By JACK BIK

One angry delegation of homeowners drove uphill on Crespi Drive to the Pacifica City Council meeting February 13 to complain about their flood problems — while another delegation drove downhill on Crespi to complain about their landslide problems.

Councilmen, meeting in their new site of Oddstad Park Recreation Center, were presented by a listing of claims for flood damages coming from homeowners in neighborhoods throughout Pacifica.

Eleven flood victims, living on Anza Drive and Balboa Way, in the lowest part of Linda Mar, presented claims for damages totaling $177,000. Two families from La Mirada Drive, also in Linda Mar, claimed $4842 in damages because of a stopped-up storm drain, causing water and mud to flow through their homes. Other complaints of damage — and appeals for help — came from homeowners on Juanita Avenue in Valleymar, Fairmont Subdivisions Improvement Association, and from Pedro Point, from Colma Creek; only a small portion of Pacifica Highlands is in its watershed.

Appealing on behalf of 12 South San Francisco property owners who are asking for a total of $202,320. All the claims were denied. The flood was from Colma Creek; only a small portion of Pacifica Highlands is in its watershed.

City Manager David Thompson explained that the city is highly limited in the amount of help it can give flood or landslide victims on their own property. He conceded that the city does have equipment and skilled labor not available to homeowners and is in a position to give some valuable help, such as using its front-loader to shovel out a load of mud from a backyard, that would take the homeowner months to do with a wheelbarrow.

"You might call it first aid."

Mayor Grace McCarthy commented. "The city has no control over springs developing during rains," Thompson said. "The city has not touched its land, which has been left in its natural state."

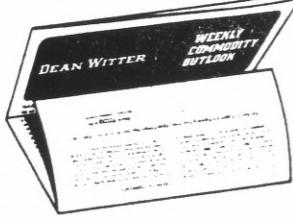

Carmazza charged that everything the city manager said was untrue. He complained that for the past three weeks he had been trying to obtain information from city officials and had been unable to.

Board Confirms Flood Proposal

The county, as well as the cities of Daly City, South San Francisco, Colma, Pacifica and San Bruno, will participate in the estimated $5 million project.

It was decided to proceed with the program on a local basis after it was indicated that it could be completed in three years, as compared with at least eight years for a federally-financed program under directions of the Army Corps of Engineers.

An added spur is that the county and the Colma Creek Flood Control District is faced with more than $8 million in claims and suits resulting from flooding of the creek during the past fall.

It may be necessary to seek voter approval of a special tax levy, still to be determined, to finance the project. Participating agencies have indicated a willingness to advance funds to get the project underway, with reimbursement to follow from the tax levy.

A pro-rata breakdown of the share of costs shows South San Francisco with the heaviest burden, $3,310,000. Other entities would contribute on the following basis: Daly City, $900,000; San Bruno, $590,000; San Mateo County, $125,000; Colma, $70,000; Pacifica, $5000.

County Engineer S. H. Cantwell Jr., reports that it is estimated that first-year costs will amount to $500,000, followed by an expenditure of $2.5 million in the second year, and $2 million in the third year.

Cantwell said that the project will be designed to provide for runoff from the heaviest storm which can be expected once every 50 years.

Camp Fire Girls Board Has Meeting

Camp Fire Girls District VI Board held their latest meeting at the home of Mrs. Julian Reinherz.

Present at the meeting besides Mrs. Reinherz were Mrs. Eldred Wolgamott, chairman, Mrs. Robert Perruquet, vice chairman, Mrs. Henry Irwin secretary, Mrs. Joseph Acquistipace, area service team representative, Mrs. Richard Freund, community relations, Mrs. Lewis Lovelady candy chairman, Miss Doris Petty and the new professional for District VI, Mrs. Barbara Bath.

The women welcomed Mrs. Bath to the district and then heard committee reports.

Mrs. Perruquet reported she was looking into the possibility of having a district-wide picnic to wind up the year's activities. She also reported on the success of the recent annual meeting of Golden Gate Council.

Sustaining membership was discussed and it was decided that new ways were going to have to be tried as the last drive fell short of goals.

Mrs. Lovelady reported on the candy sale and said it seemed to be going well in spite of the rain. The candy seems to be divided in the depots in the right proportions. Mrs. Freund reported that some girls had appeared on a local TV show and stories on candy had appeared in the local newspapers.

Day camp was discussed and Miss Petty volunteered to work on the committee with Mrs. Acquistipace. Also on the committee will be Mrs. Freund. It was decided to try to go ahead with an exposition this year as Camp Fire has in the past 2 years. Several announcements were made and the meeting was adjourned with the next one to be held March 5 at the home of Mrs. Henry Irwin.

District VI Camp Fire Girls went roller skating at the Rolldium in San Mateo recently.

The rink was reserved for the exclusive use of the girls, their families and friends.

Present from Daly City and Pacifica were girls from the groups of Mrs. Joseph Acquistipace, Mrs. James Brien, Mrs. Jay Danzig, Mrs. Richard Freund, Mrs. Charles Goan, Mrs. M. Kereopoulos, Mrs. Richard Pollastrini, Mrs. William Schoepf, Mrs. Howard Smith, Mrs. Charles Stuhr, and Mrs. Charles Van Winkle.

Besides straight skating and skating in pairs and in threes, the girls did such things as the hokey pokey on skates.

Failure of The Rallies

By DENISE BARR

each class, it took five minutes to find a basketball.

Rallies still have some great points going for them. The cheerleaders usually put on a good skit about spirit. The pom pom girls always perform a good routine. The purpose of a rally is to get the students "full of spirit". The class competition for yelling usually opens a few mouths. But seniors tend to be very quiet. But there are times when the classes come alive and the spirit is showing. The Valentine rally was an exception because the seniors did yell and the rest of the student body went into temporary shock.

The only solution to the rally problem is up to the students themselves. Each class could get more involved by performing skits at the rallies. Also, a little more organization could help a great deal.

Are rallies a past high school fad? The Valentine Rally held February 14 last week could make a person believe so. The failure of the rallies cannot be blamed on the newly appointed Commissioner of Rallies and Entertainment, Penny Fama, because most students feel the rallies have been going down hill for a long time.

Many students have commented that the rallies are unorganized and very grade-schoolish. Also students just aren't attending the rallies. Even the freshmen, who usually have excellent attendance at rallies, are slacking off.

It's Tough To Beat the Odds

By TOM POWELL

One chair was open at the blackjack table when an old man sat down and asked for change for a twenty. The dealer handed him ten silver dollars and two red chips, stuffed the twenty into a slot in the table, and proceeded to deal again.

Until the old man arrived, the game had flowed smoothly. Gamblers had sat down, played a few hands, then drifted on. Only one, the man at the far left, had been playing at the same table for more than an hour. The dealer, a brunet in her early twenties, quickly and methodically slid the cards across the green felt-covered oval, always keeping the game in motion. The clink of silver dollars punctuated the play as she paid and collected the bets after each hand.

But when the old man joined the game, the pace was suddenly broken. His fingers trembled slightly as he picked up his first two cards and gazed at them almost without comprehension. When his turn came, he was still looking down at his cards. The dealer paused and looked at him blankly. Sounds of jackpot bells and the pull of slot machine handles mingled with the shouts of crap shooters and the droning announcements of the croupiers.

One by one the other players looked up from their own cards and at the old man. He was in his seventies with blue-white skin and gray eyes. Uneven cropped out under his worn strands of thin, badly cut hair brown hat. A frayed green suit coat, ill-matched to gray wool trousers, draped loosely over his angular frame.

"Would you like a card?" the dealer asked finally.

He looked up, startled.

"Uh . . . yes," he said. "Yes, please."

She tossed him an eight of clubs.

"Thank you," he said, apologetically. "This is the last of two hundred and I've gotta be real careful."

The dealer smiled and resumed the game. Hand after hand was dealt with monotonous swiftness, broken only by pauses while the old man deliberated over his cards.

He continued to play slowly and uncertainly and, within fifteen minutes, was down to his last three dollars. He bet it all on one last hand, busted, and rose from the table.

"Gotta catch a bus," he said, sadly, and turned and shuffled away.

"Come again," said the dealer.

The old man was only one of thousands of pensioners, widowers, fortune hunters, housewives, clerks and businessmen who take buses, cars, planes and trains each weekend from the Bay Area to Reno, Lake Tahoe and Sparks. They all have one thing in common — they hope that Lady Luck will let them hit a big one, just once. They come to play keno, blackjack, slot machines, roulette, the wheel of fortune and craps. They take charter tours and receive free rooms, meals, bonus coupons, free cash, free drinks and free shows. The plush casinos give all this away, have a payroll of thousands, pay staggering taxes and still make huge profits every day.

Why?

Well, not only are the odds on the side of the house in almost every game. But a walk around any casino on a busy night will reveal something else.

The dealer smiled and resumed the game. Hand after hand was dealt with monotonous swiftness, broken only by pauses while the old man deliberated over his cards.

"I have never bought a keno ticket in my life," says Allan N. Wilson, author of 'The Casino Gambler's Guide.' It is positively the worst sucker game in the house."

Wilson has figured the odds in all casino games on a computer.

He states that the odds against hitting a $25,000 payoff are just about nine million to one.

On a ten-spot ticket, the chances are about 19 to one that a player will pick five winning numbers.

Wilson has calculated that for every dollar spent on keno, a player can expect a return of about 80 cents — a whopping 20 per cent advantage for the house.

"On the surface, 20 per cent may seem to be an outrageous house cut," Wilson says. "The management may justify it on the grounds that the turnover is not rapid and that the game requires extensive paraphernalia and a crew of operators. Nonetheless, one cannot help wondering if they are not taking advantage of the player's ignorance of the odds against him.

If an enlightened public were to engage in a boycott of keno, the operators would probably quickly oblige with more generous payoffs."

In roulette, the gambler fares somewhat better.

However, if he believes that putting five dollars down on red or black gives him a 50-50 chance of doubling his money, he'd be better off staying at home.

Remember the green 0 and 00? They combine to give the house a 5.26 per cent advantage. (When the ball lands on green, both red and black are losers.)

In roulette, the gambler may choose among 38 numbers, red or black, odd or even, or from several other possibilities. If he bets one dollar on number 16, for example, he has one chance in 38 of winning. If he wins, however, the house pays him $35 and allows him to keep the dollar he bet. Money wagered on the other individual numbers the game that, if played properly, offers the gambler the best opportunity to win money.

The old man in our story was obviously at the right place in the casino. If he had played with a sound mathematical strategy, he might have found the odds slightly in his favor. But he played so badly, he actually gave the house up to a ten per cent advantage.

He might just as well have walked in, handed his money over to the dealer, and walked out.

This article is not written to dissuade gamblers from playing. It is only hoped that more gamblers, especially those on limited incomes, would learn to play more wisely.

You don't have to send off $25 to buy some "system" advertised in a magazine. All you have to do is go to the local library. Several books are available to tell you about the odds and how, through intelligent play, you can reduce the house's long run, will ruin the gambler, have the odds swing in your favor.

A player can learn, with a little practice, when to stand or draw, when to split pairs or double down, whether to take insurance, or with a little extra effort, how to count cards and size the bets.

Among the best available recent books on the subject are "Beat the Dealer," by Edward O. Thorp, "Oswald Jacoby on Gambling," "Playing Blackjack to Win" by Roger Baldwin, and Wilson's "Casino Gambler's."

Some time back, a casino operator being interviewed on a national television program was asked whether the customers in Nevada ever walked away winners.

He replied, "When a lamb goes to the slaughter, the lamb might kill the butcher. But we Congressman Leo J. Ryan announced today the nomination of Robert J. Herbert of 2242 Kenny Way, South San Francisco, as his principal candidate for 1973 to attend the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Robert, 17, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Herbert. He is a senior at Westmoor High School in Daly City where he has earned letters in football and track. He is the treasurer of the student body of Westmoor and is a member of the California Scholarship Federation. He is also a committee representative for the St. Augustine Teen Club in South San Francisco.

Ryan said Robert is an honor student and will make an excellent cadet at West Point. The Military Academy Admissions Office has given him an "outstanding" overall potential rating.

Selected as an alternate nominee is Gary C. Wilson of 342 West Hillsdale Boulevard, San Mateo.

Drunk Driver Arrests Up In San Bruno

All have heard the advertising campaigns that stress "If you drink, don't drive."

A year-long study by the San Bruno Police Department on drinking drivers in that city would tend to concur that the slogan is sage advice of the three persons who died of auto-related accidents last year, all involved alcohol.

In the past year, as part of a selective enforcement program that utilized computers, the arrest rate on drunk drivers by San Bruno officers went up 120 per cent, from 44 in 1971 to 97 last year.

Of the 97 arrested, 83 were male and 14 female. And most of the arrests were made on a Saturday. The age bracket ranged from 17 to 68, with the average age being 50 to 55.

Of the 97 arrested, 44 were involved in accidents, and 42 of these 44 had prior arrests.

According to the State of California Vehicle Code, a second conviction of drunk driving requires a mandatory five-day to one year jail sentence and a fine of not less than $250, nor more than $1,000.

Lt. Hugh Fraser, traffic division commander with the San Bruno Police Department, said that dispositions the department has on the 42 persons arrested with prior convictions show that only about 20 per cent did time. The others, theorize the police, got off through plea bargaining.

Of the 97 arrested, 61 asked for blood tests. 8 wanted a breath test and 5 preferred urine tests to determine intoxication. State law requires either of the three and gives the driver the option.

Nineteen of those arrested refused to take any test at all, and four were not given tests because of injuries.

Ironically, when police come upon a situation where they can smell an excessive amount of alcohol, and an accident renders an individual unconscious, the officer must still lean over and tell (the unconscious person) that he is under arrest.

San Bruno's police department is now contracting with a local physician to do sobriety tests at the station, because the previous practice of taking the arrested individual to Peninsula Hospital, Burlingame, for testing, took up to an extra hour and a half of the officer's time. Tuesday night.

Although Millbrae has suspended requirements for environmental impact reports during a state legislative review of the law, council members are expected to eagerly consider whatever San Francisco International has to say.

Councilmen will also review a number of other subjects, ranging from extension of Rollins Road, to financial reports, and the "long range regional growth policy" prepared by the Association of Bay Area governments.

It is this policy, with its "no-growth" implications, which has caused protests from some spokesmen around the Bay.

Millbrae will be asked to comment, Tuesday night, on whether or not it likes expansion plans of San Francisco International Airport.

SSF Solves Three Of 4 Arson Fires

Fire Chief Lawrence A. Toellner today hailed what he called the unusually high percentage of success achieved by the team of Fire Inspector G. Castro of the South San Francisco Fire Department and Detective D. McCool of the South San Francisco Police Department in the solving of recent arson fires.

Of four recent arson cases investigated, three have been resolved, he reported.

"The fourth is still under investigation and it too, may be successfully solved in the next week or so," he said.

Toellner noted that this is an exceptional record of success since arson is one of the most difficult crimes to solve. He credits both Castro and McCool with an intense and professional determination in their investigation work.

The three cases were listed as follows:

On November 14, 1972, a major fire occurred at the E & J Upholstery Company, 132 Starlite Street. An arson investigation was initiated immediately by Castro and McCool. As a result of their work, three men are in custody, Toellner said.

Sunnyvale Man Drowns At Pacifica

A Sunnyvale man drowned Saturday when a large wave flipped over the boat he was operating in Shelter Cove off Pacifica, the sheriff's office reports.

George Kikugawa, 55, an employee of a Los Altos nursery, was pulled dead from the ocean shortly after 1 p.m.

His companion, Raymond S. Okamoto, 64, also of Sunnyvale, told Deputy Joe Franzoi that the two left in the boat from Princeton about 8 a.m. to go fishing.

They decided to put ashore at Pacifica for lunch, Okamoto said, reporting he warned Kikugawa not to get too close to rocks lining the coastline. Suddenly, he reported, a large wave hit the boat, flipping it over keel.

Okamoto said he was wearing a life jacket, but that Kikugawa was not. Okamoto was helped from the water by Larry Kane, 22, of 1236 Crespi Avenue, Pacifica. Kikugawa's body later was found on the rocky beach.

Okamoto was taken to Mary's Help Hospital for examination.

Mercy High Gets Grant For Library

Mercy High School in Burlingame, a secondary school for young women, has received a $52,000 grant from the Federal government through the California State Board of Education to establish a Model Library and Instructional Media Center. The grant initiated from the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, Title II, Phase II and will be administered by Dr. A. Hugh Livingston, superintendent of the San Mateo Union High School District.

The funds will be used to purchase printed materials consisting of periodicals, microfilm reels, pamphlets and documents, as well as audio-visual materials including motion picture films, filmstrips, tape and disc recordings, programmed instructional materials, slides and transparencies.

Mercy High School will be the only non-public institution in the San Francisco and Peninsula areas to have such a facility. Educators will be invited to tour the library and center, review the records documenting student progress and to begin evaluating the effects in the years following establishment of the center in October, 1973.

Store Holdup

A slim six-footer with a mustache held up Al's Liquors on Grand Avenue in South San Francisco at 9 p.m. Sunday and escaped with an undetermined amount of cash, police reported this morning.

The man entered the store, approached the clerk in back, took out a .38 caliber revolver and demanded his cash. He then taped up the 20-year-old clerk and fled on foot.

Advisory Unit Members Chosen By Area College

Five persons from the Daly City-Colma area are newly named members of College of the City-Colma area are newly named members of College of the Northern Municipal Court on February 5, with the case bound over to Superior Court. A total of 540 man-hours of investigation time was devoted to this one case.

On January 23, an arson fire occurred at 68 Randolph Avenue. As a direct result of their thorough and complete investigation, the responsible individual pleaded guilty in Northern Municipal Court on February 8, Toellner said.

The investigation of two recent arson fires occurring at the South San Francisco High School, 825 Southwood Drive, was concluded by Fire Inspector G. Castro on February 13, when the responsible youth was cited and remanded to Juvenile Authority.

Two South San Francisco residents also were selected.

They are Noel Nichols, a departmental manager at Macy's San Francisco, and Roger Wood, a New York Life agent with offices in Burlingame.

The county Mental Health Association and the Comprehensive Health Planning Council have joined to conduct a first-time extensive review of San Mateo County's $11,000,000 mental health program and planning activities.

According to Ralph Bunje, Chairman of the CHPC Mental Health Committee, "this major review is long overdue."

"With state hospitals now phasing out, and mental patients and the retarded returning to the community, we're going to have to get more citizens working on planning local programs to accommodate our handicapped," Bunje said.

"We've been talking about citizen involvement for some time now, and state legislation requires the community to approve these so-called master plans before they are implemented. Now we're doing something about it," he added.

The Comprehensive Health Planning Council's Mental Health Committee and the Mental Health Association started the review February 3; it is to take several months.

Mental Health Association Chairwoman, Mrs. Margaret Feeney, says that six teams involving 50 people have been organized to conduct the study. The San Mateo County Health and Welfare Department's Mental Health Division and its acting chief, Dr. John Visher, have been very cooperative, she said.

Bunje feels that San Mateo County is not any better prepared to accommodate the returning state hospital patient than most of the counties in the state.

"By the time our volunteers are finished with this review, we'll have more citizens in our community who understand how the system works, who makes the big decisions and how well the people of this county are being served," he said.

The volunteer workers participating in the project strongly believe that successful mental health planning and programming is dependent upon meaningful involvement of the community, he indicated.

Bunje said that, "citizen advisory groups shouldn't just rubber-stamp bureaucratic plans, they ought to know what's going on and why. That way when a so-called crisis occurs, like the phasing out of community mental health, but that they have been generated primarily for internal purposes and are supervised by the administrators of mental health centers and state hospitals, it won't be a crisis . . . people will know and understand because they were actively participating in the planning."

Mrs. Feeney emphasized that, "People are more likely to sympathize with actions they know something about and have had some part in devising than with actions imposed arbitrarily from without." State and Federal statutes providing funds for mental health programs require concomitant planning in the allocation of resources and stress the necessity for inclusion of the public in the decision making process.

Bunje pointed out that, "There are other studies underway and being conducted by the State and the San Mateo County Health and Welfare Department the massive program is mind boggling but we've got to start some place, otherwise, how are people expected to learn what's going on and how to bring about changes within the system." She continued, "Citizen involvement is nice, but it's something that occurs through hard work and not by accident."

Mrs. Feeney and Bunje said the review will establish channels of communications among the MHA, CHPC, the community mental health centers, the people served, and other community agencies.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Night Racing Feb. 21 Free Car Sat., March 3

Starting Wednesday, February 21, night racing will take over at Bay Meadows in San Mateo. Post time for the first race will be 7:45 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday, through the race will be 7:45 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday, through the final day of the meet, Saturday, March 3. In appreciation to the many fans who have made the "wet" meet a success under all weather handicaps, Dr. William J. Ward, President and General Manager of the California Horse Racing Association, will offer a new 1973 Chevrolet to a lucky ticket holder on Saturday, March 3, when the "Fans' Appreciation Day Drawing" will be held previous to the 7th race. Tickets are available now at the Admission Gate and will be given out up to and including March 3. Dinner and cocktails served each evening, and special group plans may be arranged. Dapper Gene Mongiello is the general manager of Dave Rasmussen's new Davey's Locker. Although this is his first restaurant management position, Gene is well known in local business circles. Prior to joining the Rasmussen crew, he was a prominent insurance executive on the Peninsula.

CELEBRITY PARTY — Quite a gathering of names in the news at a palatial home in Hollywood in honor of Sheeky Green's wedding, which took place last month. Among the many guests who attended the gala affair were San Mateo's Sam Basin (he's a big new and used furniture dealer), along with his beautiful wife, Maxine, and Glen Campbell, the nationally known television, radio and nitrate headliner.

Not Tall Enough To Diet Says Paddock's Big Nick

Petite Organist Margie Brandon made an unsuccessful attempt at getting her boss, "Big Nick," to go on a diet. The enormous owner of The Paddock on Geary Street in San Francisco, where Margie sings her heart out nightly, felt that he was really not overweight but that he just wasn't tall enough. Margie has heard all kinds of stories but this line of reasoning left her speechless. Although the remodeling project has been completed for some time, Vince Russo still hears considerable raves about his Russo's Distillery in San Bruno. The major face-lifting is the work of Mike Kane, a well-known San Mateo designer who has done jobs for several of the better restaurants on the Peninsula. The Costa Brava restaurant has a new chef, Thomas C. Wilkins, whose many specialties include Costa Stuchini (tender medallion of beef sauteed in a special sauce and topped with sliced prosciutto ham, Jack cheese and mushrooms) and Roast Rack of Lamb Bouquetiere (served for two). Prices are most reasonable and the portions are huge. If you're having a special function, call Manager Kam Amdjadi for reservations and menu details.

Montara Beach Hotel Open Monday

Frank and Fannie Torres are back in action at their Montara restaurant-hotel overlooking the rugged but beautiful waters of the Pacific. Torres' restaurant is famed for South American specialties, and we recommend you drop in and try one. Why not join the crowds who flock here and welcome this energetic restaurant team back from vacation. Judging from the many out-of-state license plates appearing in the large parking area of Scotty Campbell's restaurant, it's quite obvious that the summer vacation set is already on the prowl. You'll find the owners of this splendid Redwood City restaurant affable in reception, and always on hand to discuss the specialties of the house as well as to point out the celebrities who are frequent diners. There are many reasons in addition to the fine food why Scotty Campbell's is regarded as one of the Peninsula's leading restaurants. Peninsula steel magnate Mort Silberman hosted a family dinner party in the elegant Wellington Room of Phil Lehr's in San Francisco the other night. The Silbermans feasted on Lehr's famous Pay-By-ounce steaks topped off their dinners with another Lehr specialty: Delectable Cheesecake Jubilee dessert.

Pat Montclair's Hit Act—Finocchio's Revue

Pat Montclair, a dazzling blonde female impersonator in Finocchio's current revue, is a big hit with his sultry interpretations of modern ballads. Among Pat's specialties are some Barbra Streisand numbers, such as "Sam, You Made the Pants Too Long." Adding appeal to this act is a colorful wardrobe . . . Speedy Garfin, who headlines with his Garfin Gathering, now appearing nightly in the Golden Rooster Lounge of the Rodeway Inn, South San Francisco, once performed with Don Rickles. They met at the Elegante Supper Club in Brooklyn. After two engagements in Las Vegas, with Speedy playing straight man to Rickles, he left for something more musical. Since that time, Speedy has entertained in most of the major metropolises around the country . . . Rumors throughout Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, have it that despite new competition in the field of pizzas, Romano's Italian restaurant still leads the pack. This is due primarily to the hard-work and persistent nature of the "Prince of Pizza," Enrico Romano, who for many years has offered the finest in pizzas and Italian dinners. Enrico is not only a businessman-restaurant owner, he is active in civic matters, charity drives, etc.

Park Ave. Tours Offers Money-Saving Trips

"Fun is South Lake Tahoe" — and Park Avenue Tours, with four branch offices to serve you, is the convenient and money-saving way to enjoy "Entertainment the Nevada Way." If you're going by car, ask about their one-night and two-night fun packages, which are available seven days a week. There's a total bonus value of $10 per person on the one-nighter ($6 cash, $1 food credit, $3 cocktails), and a $13 refund on the two-night stay. Going by Greyhound bus? Inquire about their Overnights which offer the same bonus savings and include double occupancy. There is also the Daily eight-hour Turnaround, with Greyhound bus schedules from San Francisco and Oakland Depots. Bonuses up to $6. In addition, Park Avenue Tours can accommodate your groups with charters going anywhere, anytime, anywhere. There's a convenient office in San Mateo for those residing on the Peninsula. So don't put off making arrangement for an exciting time at Stateline. . . .

Live Music And Dancing Brallier's Whiskey Hill

Whiskey Hill, in downtown Burlingame, is an action spot where live music and dancing can be enjoyed every night of the week. Owner Pete Brallier, who gained fame with the various Peninsula Round Table Pizza Parlor locations, showcases some of the best entertainment available. Currently appearing five nights a week, Wednesday through Sunday, is Bishop. On Mondays and Tuesdays the sounds of Oblivion . . . The tremendous volume of thirsty and hungry hordes that keep the Franciscan restaurant humming is ably handled by the team of General Manager George Skaff and his son, Richard, assistant manager. The big attraction at this gourmet's marineland is the epicurean seafood. The menu contains a vast selection. Yes, there are excellent steaks also. To slake the thirst, the Franciscan, located at Pier 43½ on Fisherman's Wharf, stores the best in imported and domestic wines to compliment any meal . . . Coming to the Fairmont's Venetian Room February 27 is the one and only Sarah Vaughan. Miss Vaughan has been dubbed "Miss Versatility" for her TV and nightclub performances in which she belts out pop jazz, classical, and rock numbers.

NOW SERVING BREAKFAST — Pretty Linda is one of several "Breakfast Girls" now serving breakfast to customers at Chicken Unlimited. This is a new restaurant policy for Owner Ed Chalkagian, who now opens his Chicken Unlimited every morning, Monday through Friday, at 7 a.m.

INGRATIATING STAGE PRESENCE — The Hilton Inn is bouncing to the beat of Maurice Anger's Band these days. Dance Thursday through Saturday nights to your favorite music — rock, popular, classical, or the nostalgic themes of the 30's and 40's. Maurice, with the Hilton since 1960, continues to entertain at the piano Tuesday and Wednesday for guests in the French Corner and the Mark Twain Lounge. The excellent food and service of the romantic French Corner Restaurant lures Peninsula for special evenings of dining and dancing. Dinner-dancing or a nightcap, the music and atmosphere will delight you.

San Mateo Bruno's Has Banquet Facilities

AAA is just one of many Peninsula companies frequently utilizing the private banquet facilities at Bruno's in downtown San Mateo. In fact, a large gathering from the huge insurance company is scheduled to dine here tonight. It's a retirement party with nearly 70 guests slated for dinner and cocktails . . . Residents from nearby Woodlake are rapidly discovering the delightful Chinese dishes available at Moy's restaurant on Peninsula Avenue. Family dinners begin at $3.50 (for two persons), which includes rice, chow mein, sweet and sour pork, egg fu yung, tea and cookies. Lunches served daily . . . The cocktail lounge of the Ben Jonson restaurant, at San Francisco's Cannery, is attractive and comfortable. Odds are, once you've tried it, you will be back again and again. Open seven days a week for luncheon and dinner. Everything listed on the menu is a "specialty of the house" . . . Perry's Smorgy (located next to Bay Meadows in San Mateo) is where budget-conscious families are heading these days. You can "Eat and drink all you want for $1.50," with an array of Smorgy dishes to choose from. There are always several hot dishes, plus Okie Fried Chicken, many salads, hot rolls, and "make your own" sundaes.

Banque Room Ideal For Parties And Banquets

Dave Rasmussen's Shadows of San Mateo offers one of the finest banquet facilities to be found on the Peninsula. Called the "Banque Room," its grand setting for any type business or social gathering. Because of its popularity with the many organizations in the Bay Area, it's wise to plan well ahead with reservations . . . Instead of taking a lengthy vacation, Mike Quivey, food and beverage director of the Holiday Inn, South San Francisco, is back on the job of overseeing the activities in the Royal Hall dining room, which, incidentally, is the busy scene for a fantastic Sunday Brunch, the Lancer Lounge, and the banquet accommodations. Quivey reports that his few days of skiing at Lake Tahoe were most enjoyable . . . There's a new entertainer in the lounge of the New Southern restaurant Friday and Saturday nights, and he's Gordon Tucker, a well known organist in these parts. Before settling down to one of your favorite southern-style dinners, meander over to the cocktail lounge of this South San Francisco restaurant and lend an ear. If you have a challenging tune request, see if Tucker can follow through.

Nick Gust Is Man Of "Many Hats"

It's a wonder how Nick Gust finds time for all his projects. Besides overseeing operations of his Rockaway Beach restaurants, he's currently involved with construction of a deluxe motel-hotel, which will also be located on the shores of Pacifica. Standing just yards back from the picturesque beach is the time-honored Nick's restaurant and lounge, which was begun years ago by Nick's father. Today, it continues to attract diners from all over the Bay Area, especially for Sunday breakfast (lunch and dinner are also served). There is also a fine bar, and dancing to the popular Steve Romano Combo, Wednesdays through Sundays. Located just next-door and also overlooking the waters of the Pacific, is a two-story building housing The Moonraker, a restaurant that has been carefully designed with the gourmet diner in mind. The theme is nautical, which enhances the intrigue. The menu consists of one item after another for the connoisseur. Augmenting the food is the organ music of Don Kelly. Summing up, these are more than restaurants — they are a tantalizing goal with rewards for the hungry and thirsty. The traveler may stop, relax and partake of a meal in hospitable surroundings.

Maher, president and chief of operations, reported at the annual meeting of policyholders that sales of individual and group life insurance totaled $8.6 billion in 1972, an increase of 3.1 percent. Total insurance in force at year-end was $69.9 billion.

Total income exceeded $2 billion for the first time in company history and net operating gain was $24.7 million, an increase of $2 million over 1971.

Hancock paid benefits in 1972 of $1.1 billion, including $98.4 million distributed as policyholder dividends. More than 72 percent of total benefits were paid to living policyholders, Maher said.

K of C Gives 50-Year Pins

Knights of Columbus Council 1346 of San Mateo and Burlingame awarded 14 members with 50-year pins at a recent dinner at the K of C Clubrooms in San Mateo.

State Deputy James J. Molony, aided by Past State Deputy Jack Tiscornia and Grand Knight Harold Gallon, made the presentations. Each of the men were presented with a copy of the recently published book telling the history of the Knights of Columbus.

The Mayor of San Mateo, John J. Murray, a member of the Council, addressed the group.

The main speaker was Mrs. Rose Elinor Murphy, second vice regent of the California State Court, Catholic Daughters of America.

Redwood City Youth Dies; Probe Drugs

Coroner's investigators and Redwood City police today were attempting to determine if the death of Mark Allen Coffin, an 18-year-old laborer of 919 Clinton Street, Apt. 6, Redwood City, yesterday was due to an accidental overdose of drugs.

According to Officer Milton H. Borgens, Coffin lived with his sister, Mrs. Jan Lee Reynolds, who reported she left her apartment about noon Sunday, to visit a friend.

When she returned about midnight Sunday, she said she found her brother asleep on a couch.

When she awakened about 10:30 a.m., yesterday, Mrs. Reynolds said she found her brother hadn't moved and had a "funny looking" color to his skin.

Questioned if her brother had used drugs, Mrs. Reynolds said he had used "reds," a type of sedative.

Coroner's Investigator Steven Horton said he found some 30 tablets and capsules next to Coffin's body. He estimated he had been dead about 18 hours.

What to do
With the Kids

What shall we do with the kids in San Francisco? See a show, take them to a concert, walk through a museum, go to the beach, visit the zoo, go horseback riding, enroll them in a ceramics course, lose them in a park? But where do you find such things and what do they cost?

At last there is a book to help. Where To Go and What To Do with the Kids in San Francisco is dedicated to parents, grandparents, youth group leaders, and harassed out-of-towners whose youngsters ask, "What are we going to do today?" In editing it Mary and Richard Lewis have tried to select from a great variety of places and activities (many of them free) those that would be of most interest to kids.

SO HOW ABOUT beachcombing? The San Francisco beach abounds with unusual stones and shells that may be picked up at low tide. They are covered with rock pools filled with small creatures. Pebble Beach, down the peninsula, is noted for its treasures of agate, jasper, and other colored stones. Agate Beach in Marin is rough and rocky. At ebb tide it has wonderful pools filled with tiny fish, crabs, and other small animals. China Beach in James D. Phelan State Park is the only San Francisco beach safe for swimming.

Then there is bicycle riding. There is a seven and a half mile bikeway through Golden Gate Park; a three and a half mile bicycle trail from Golden Gate to Lake Merced.

Marin County has eleven bike routes with two of them crossing the Golden Gate Bridge. There is a scenic bicycle trail along the shore of Lake Chabot. Another runs through Sausalito and connects with boats for Angel Island.

Boats may be rented at Lake Temescal and Lake Merritt in Oakland. San Francisco Recreation and Park Department conducts summer day camps in Glen Park Canyon and Pine Lake Camp. Berkeley has camps in the Tilden Regional Park. Bootjack and Pan Toll Campgrounds within Mount Tamalpais State Park feature steep hills and rocky crags.

DON'T FORGET the Golden Gate Ferry. It runs eleven times a day on weekdays and seven times on weekends. The Angel Island-San Francisco Ferry is now a year round sailing activity while the Tiburon-Angel Island Ferry, the Tiburon-San Francisco Ferry, the Berkeley-Tiburon-Angel Island Ferry are ever popular rides.

Pigeon Point Lighthouse, south of Pescadero, is the only lighthouse in the area remaining open to visitors. Bio-Sonar Laboratory in Fremont arranges free guided tours to meet seals, sea lions and otters.

Where To Go and What To Do with the Kids in San Francisco is divided into ten sections. The last is a calendar of events that is most valuable. The next to last contains fascinating odds and ends such as cable car routes and maps.

Stirring Congress Contributed To Its Own Decline

Congress is stirring. Many of its members profess to be deeply disturbed by the imbalance of power in foreign affairs. Some members threaten to make things hard on the President and his programs.

So be it. A certain amount of checking and balancing is, after all, a part of the system and must be considered whole-some.

What, however, about the claims of constitutional inadequacy? Are the powers of the co-equal departments of the federal government really out of balance, or has the Congress defaulted in the handling of its responsibility?

A strong case can be made that Congress has done itself in, and that its own sloppiness has contributed to the decline of its powers. This case can be most dramatically illustrated through a review of the Southeast Asia Resolution, and its adoption by a 504 to 2 vote of the two houses.

The idea of such a resolution came from the then chief executive, Lyndon Johnson. Following an incident in the Tonkin Gulf, Johnson met with congressional leaders and secured preliminary indications of support. A draft was prepared by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Under Secretary of State George Ball in consultation with some members of Congress and was ultimately accepted as offered.

Before considering what happened at that time, we should review briefly the role of Congress in foreign affairs. Congress can declare wars and ratify treaties. It has the power of continuing legislative oversight and has crucial strength through the appropriation of funds. It can conduct hearings, both as a means of informing itself and of developing public opinion. It may pass and repeal resolutions. If forcefully and artfully used, these other powers were more than sufficient to have affected the course of the Southeast Asian conflict.

On August 10, 1964 it was a dismal day for the United States Congress. On that day Lyndon Johnson signed the Southeast Asia Resolution and pocketed a carelessly adopted blank check that Congress and the people were later to seriously regret. Lyndon had, in fact, lobbied Congress by the ears and wasn't going to readily let go.

The resolution gave Congressional backing to "take all necessary measures to repel any armed attack against the forces of the United States and to prevent further aggression."

It also declared that the United States is therefore prepared, as the President determines, to take all necessary steps, including the use of armed force, to assist any member or protocol state of the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty requesting assistance in defense of its freedom."

Congress is famous for its hearings. Long and tedious proceedings are held about a wide variety of topics, some important, and some trivial. Confronted with a proposal that has to be judged the single most vital matter before it in at least a decade, Congress was so eager to please a front running Lyndon Johnson that it held no real inquiry into the matter of the Southeast Asia Resolution.

On the Senate side Senator William Fulbright conducted a joint meeting of the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Committee on Armed Services. Its labors consumed one hour and forty minutes. The Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives held what its chairman later called a "go-go type of session" that lasted an hour and a half. The House Armed Services Committee did not even convene.

In its rush to do the President's will, the Congress: 1) Lost the opportunity to study the bona fides of the claimed emergency. 2) Failed to independently evaluate the circumstances of the Tonkin Gulf incident. 3) Ignored the significance of giving the President warmaking powers in the absence of declaring war. 4) Cursory refused to consider an amendment by Senator Gaylord Nelson that would have limited the American role to advisory, training and support mission. 5) Gave the President more power than he said he wanted or needed.

In 1964, at a crossroads of history, the Congress ignored its responsibilities. Hard work and thought might have changed the resolution and world history. In 1973 the same body fulminates about the insufficiency of its constitutional powers. Its angry voices miss the point.

If Congress wants to review the source and extent of its prerogatives, I suggest the same committees conduct hearings and that Senator Fulbright chair the Senatorial proceedings as he did in 1964. Then I propose that these august committees be read, word for word, their "hearings" of 1964.

Following this both houses should seriously consider their quite extensive powers, and how to usefully employ them in the future.

Smoking Could Be Hazardous to Politics

A proposed Millbrae city ordinance to prohibit the smoking of cigars, cigarettes and pipes in public meeting rooms of publicly owned buildings does not arouse much astonishment. To be sure about it, probably it is one of those ideas whose time has come.

It may signal, to be even more trite, the end of an era when local political decisions are made in "smoke-filled rooms." Whether it will add anything to the wisdom of such decisions is debatable, but atmospheric clarity can conceivably increase public attendance at council, commission, and other public meetings.

The rights of non-smokers are being increasingly better observed and this has been a long and continuous process. It began back at the turn of the century when railroads first introduced the novelty of "smoking cars" and relegated the stogie and pipe smokers to this mild form of quarantine. A similar practice followed in theatres when they outlawed smoking except in lobbies and foyers and, by so doing, noticeably reduced the coughing that frequently interfered with theatrical performances.

The large movie theatres, however, became popular about the time when cigarette smoking had become widespread and many of them attempted a compromise by allowing smoking only in loge seats and special sections. Some of them still follow that policy.

With the advent of the air age, airlines quite generally placed a ban on cigars and pipes, but permitted cigarettes. Most recently, the cigarettes are losing ground and are being limited to special sections.

The prospects for the Millbrae ordinance are good. Most smokers are not unduly concerned about their rights to their own form of air pollution and there is small chance of a concerted protest by them. They know they are fighting a losing battle.

Smoke-filled public rooms will not be missed, not even as a matter of nostalgia. It's been a long time since anyone saw any of the monumental brass spittoons that once ornamented city halls and courtrooms when tobacco-chewing was common.

The demise of the public ashtray grows closer.

Gruff
Speaker

IF THERE WAS one thing Ed Frank wasn't, it was gruff. He spoke gruff and tried to act it. But he fell far short when you got to know him.

I used to compare notes on Ed with an old newsbuddy of mine, the late Frederick Pumphrey. "Fritz" covered Ed when he was on the Petaluma beat and Ed Frank was that city's manager. We both shared the same mutual respect and admiration for the cigar-chomping administrator.

A POLITICIAN he wasn't. He was a shrewd bargainer, especially where city money was involved. But the way he presented his side of a situation sometimes ruffled feathers among those he dealt with. He moved to Daly City to take up the city manager post, but went back to Petaluma, where he left his heart.

Shortly before his death, Ed was asking around if there were any homes vacant in Daly City. In his lifetime, Ed had many loves. But there were four we know of.

In the order he placed them: His family (led by his wife Wille), work, cigars, and beating the Hell out of his opponents on the golf course.

AND NOW THERE seems to be attempts to frighten free born, free-thinking Americans into not participating openly in petitioning the recall of a politician they do not favor.

The words selected to denounce a recall petition circulating throughout Colma concerning mayor Raymond Ottoboni Sr. by the latter are now being carefully studied, by attorneys, a person associated with the recall — has informed this column.

More obviously will be forthcoming on the issue — one of the hottest potatoes that city has had since Councilman Ottoboni's son was appointed chief of police, succeeding the late Dini Lagomarsino.

VOTERS OUSTED Glenn Duncan as a Colma councilman at the last municipal elections. Duncan also was appointed by the Colma Council. Mr. Ottoboni has stated publicly that Mr. Duncan, married to a niece of the Ottoboni's, is not a relative, as charged in the recall petition.

And it also has been stated publicly by both Ottoboni and Duncan, that he was appointed to the Council (over many long-time residents of the city) because of his Council experience in Japan. It seems Mr. Duncan was a councilman in that country in some capacity. Having spent years in Japan, and years in the military, such an office is news to us. Frankly, we have never heard of a military councilman, town mayor or whatever.

ALL BIDS FOR the proposed seventh and eighth grade school at St. Francis Heights will be probably thrown out tonight by the majority of the JESD Board.

The bids, as predicted, ran over the budgeted amount. There are other, equally interesting, items on the agenda of tonight's regular trustee's session to be held at the Daly City Hall, 90th and Sullivan, under the ever watchful TV eye of Big Brother. Plenty of free parking.

IN OUR column of February 7, 1973, in commenting on the selection of the Leak Board we stated, "First to be selected was Leo Padreddi, a trustee of the South San Francisco Unified School District. Padreddi is a longtime friend of Chairman Collett".

Mr. Collett has written to us asking that we correct this statement and in doing so Mr. Collett has stated, "I met Mr. Padreddi approximately four years ago at a meeting of the San Mateo County School Board Association. Subsequent to that time our total contact would not exceed five or six such incidental meetings that have taken place on similar occasions. My total conversation with Mr. Padreddi, including the fifteen minutes he spent with the panel of inquiry, would be less than one hour."

We are pleased to make the correction requested by Mr. Collett and regret any embarrassment which may have resulted from our stating that he was a longtime friend of Mr. Padreddi.

ASSEMBLYMAN Lou Papan and his staff, namely Bruce Grey, spent the weekend sloshing around in the muddy residue of Colma Creek getting the big picture.

THE BIG PICTURE is M-O-N-E-Y. Without money all the disaster area proclamations in world aren't going to help the victims of Colma Creek. What we got from Papan is action. What we haven't got from Washington yet is money.

Le Pacini

Sports Promoter, Friend Is Dead

Frank "Bow Tie" Walsh, sports promoter and my continuous friend and sometimes mentor, is dead.

And even though he was 65 and weighed more than he should have, I find it hard to believe that he could have died because he was a man so full of life and optimism, so "hip" to the times that he seemed ageless, even when the gray hair came and the world-wide promotional trips began to more and more be replaced by fantastic long-distance telephone bills.

He may be the only man we've ever envied, because he had the good fortune to always have worked at the one job in life he loved — working with athletes, promoting sports. As far as Frank was concerned, he had never worked a day in his life. He had spent all of his days enjoying himself and those around him.

WALSH WAS probably the last of the old-time sports hucksters, the "ballyhoo" artists. He was to international basketball what Jack Kearns was to international boxing. Like Kearns (but on a smaller scale, because he dealt with amateurs all his life rather than pros), his promotions were often outrageously razzy-dazzle and even his failures — which were rare — were spectacular and a lot of fun. Walsh would never dream of offering the mundane when the flamboyant was possible.

Walsh became famous in San Francisco just after World War II when he began promoting big-time college basketball in the Cow Palace. His corny punning ("The Cow Palace was an 'udder' failure") and hundreds of bow ties — all concocted especially for special occasions by his wife, Margaret — became familiar at the Palace and at sports desks.

For two or three seasons, Walsh's basketball promotions were a tremendous success, but then he began having difficulties in obtaining outstanding teams at reasonable guarantees, because the crowds were becoming progressively smaller.

One of the reasons was that the Palace, in those days, had a virtually non-existent heating system. The winter of '48 was an especially harsh one, and when people began complaining about the cold, Walsh reacted typically, by hiring girls to sit on the floor of the Palace in sun suits under beach umbrellas, sipping cold drinks, while he, himself, circulated around the building in basketball trunks.

When that didn't work, ("There were more people showing up to see my legs than there were to see the games"), he remembered some judo lessons he had once taken. He began trying to neutralize the enemy's strength by using it. Soon stories about the cold at the Cow Palace were somehow being leaked to the wire services. St. Bernard's were hired as ushers and there was a report that Eskimos were preparing demonstrations because the Cow Palace was plastering blurs from their Chamber of Commerce reports to tourists. One evening men dressed in Eskimo garb took tickets.

None of it worked, in the end, but like any Walsh promotion, it had been fun.

I FIRST MET WALSH in 1953, when he was doing athletic publicity for San Francisco State College and I was hired as his assistant. Walsh never could hypo the gates for the Gator football teams, but we had fun trying. One of his promotions was called "Grocery Night." Everybody buying a bag of groceries at a certain local supermarket got a free ticket to a State football game. A lot of people around Westlake and Stonestown must have gone hungry that weekend.

But Walsh was unflappable. He never called a story into the newspapers when, by his count, there weren't more people at the game than there were seats in the stadium to accommodate them. When I would innocently point this out to him he'd glare at me and mutter, "Never give correct attendance counts, or people will think you're a failure." A lesson learned by Charley Finley much later.

Frank was also the first man to tell me that any publicity is good publicity, as long as they spell your name right.

When Walsh left the college, we remained friends, and in fact were even in on a couple of other promotional schemes with him, which weren't remarkably successful, but which were fun. And when I began writing sports columns and would occasionally run into a quiet week, a phone call to Walsh would provide me with enough material to fill columns for a month.

There was the time, for example, when at the height of the Cold War in 1955 Walsh somehow conned his way into a good will tour of Russia sporting a bowtie which pictured the Stars and Stripes on one wing and the hammer and sickle on the other. At a time when all Russians looked upon Americans as their most hated enemy, Walsh was walking the streets of Moscow, drawing curious crowds with his bowtie, then casually discussing sports with the Soviet man-on-the-street, and eventually making friends.

WALSH HAD copies of his ties made up for the high Soviet athletic officials with whom he discussed American basketball techniques, upon his return to the United States, donated a copy of the tie to the State Department, and then gave one to Sports Illustrated, which featured Walsh's USSR exploits along with a full page color picture of his tie.

The Russian trip was only one of Walsh's triumphs. Others included promotion of the first Cotton Bowl game, the first movie premiere in the Canadian Yukon, the first inter-racial basketball game ever played in the United States (on Lincoln's birthday), the first basketball game between American and South American teams, the first basketball game between American and Icelandic teams, and a score of others.

Just last year Walsh told us, "It's satisfying to make friends from foreign countries, but it's just as gratifying for coaches and players — and for me — to see American techniques carried across the seas and implemented. After all, we invented the game, and it's always nice to see your baby enriching other

MPL Matmen Show Up Well

The Mid-Peninsula League should be proud of the way its teams performed in Saturday's Central Coast Section Region II meet at Skyline College in San Bruno.

Los Gatos was the individual champ with 76 points, but the MPL filled the next three spots. San Mateo was the runnerup with 56, Crestmoor was third with 48 and Hillsdale fourth with 46. Del Mar finished fifth.

The top four grapplers in each weight class at Skyline have qualified for the CCS meet next weekend at Buehler High in San Jose. Twenty MPL wrestlers will be there. San Mateo will send six, Hillsdale five and Crestmoor four.

As a league, the MPL only had two individual champs but both were very impressive. Steve Cook of Crestmoor (145's) finally pinned his opponent with only six seconds left in the match. Mike Harney of San Mateo (112's) had to overcome an overtime semi-final match and had no trouble in the finals winning 7-0.

Six localites garnered seconds. Rick Wise and Bruce Stevens of Crestmoor. Mickey Williams and Craig Thomas of San Mateo. Bob Pelissier of Aragon and Mike Everson of Hillsdale all had the "bridesmaid" role. The MPL also picked up four third's and eight fourth's.

Knight Cagers Win

Hillsdale High's basketball (lions) honest," said Wilkin, team is poised and ready for the "he's going to hurt you." Mid-Peninsula League playoffs — the ones they won last year.

The Knights, victims of a second-round slump that had cost three consecutive games, looked as dangerous as ever Friday in a fast-paced 78-63 win over visiting Capuchino.

Coach Bill Wilkin seemed to think so. "I think it was one of our best games of the season," he said after the victory which snuffed out Cap's last hopes for a play-off spot. "We ran our offensive motion awfully well and got some good shots out of it."

Hillsdale moved inside almost at will against the smaller Mustangs, who couldn't do much more than put up their hands and hope. That play didn't work too well — and even when the Knights missed, they were drawing key fouls in the process.

Junior guard Rod Williams came up with his best performance since coming back from a broken finger, leading both teams with 30 points — including 14-14 from the line.

Capuchino, enroute not to follow what has been a common practice against Williams in setting up a special defense, went one-on-one almost the entire game. "If you play him (Wi-

Skyline Bags First Place In Wrestling

Skyline College won first place in the Camino Norte Conference wrestling tournament Friday — but the Trojans aren't doing any cartwheels about it.

Although De Anza College finished second in tourney, the club captured the overall Camino Norte title due to its strong dual meet season and runnerup finish.

Skyline took three wins, with Gary Goodrich taking the 158 division, Ross Dove with 167s and Jeff Smith capturing the 190-lb. final.

Also for the Trojans, Tom Cherhoniak was second at 142, heavyweight Ron Cole was runnerup, Dillard Newman was third in 177 and Bob Beckman (118) finished fourth.

Canada College had four top finishers, with Steve Medina (126), Nick Testa (134) and Pat Lucaturo (142) fourth and Dennis Doezel (190) third.

Team tournament results were Skyline 66½, De Anza 65, West Valley 56, Solano 45½, Santa Rosa 35, Marin 34, Canada 21 and Contra Costa 5.

Canada hosts the Northern California tourney next Saturday at 10 a.m.

Regents Finally Toppled

ers. Other conference action saw Oceana beat El Camino in overtime, 59-55, while Terra Nova outscored Half Moon Bay 75-70.

At times South City went devastating against the Regents, who appeared to be a little flat after cinching their first title last Wednesday. With Lynn Simmons controlling the boards in a superb effort, the Warriors led 51-27 before Serramonte made its last rally.

Serramonte was unable to stay on the boards at either end against the Warriors. Simmons and Chris Vance kept getting second and third shots all through the first three periods to cushion the margin as high as it went.

Then Ralph Sands came off the Regents' bench to spark Serramonte to an almost miracle comeback with 19 points.

The Warriors kept trying to give the game away as they continued their poor foul-shooting year with 21 misses from the line. There were 49 fouls called in what was a badly controlled (temper-wise) game.

Westmoor and Jefferson played in a game that had no bearing on anything, no matter who won, with the only sidelight being the matchup between the league's top two scorers.

Number two scorer Gavin Long won that duel, outscoring Jeff center Harold Norman 20-12.

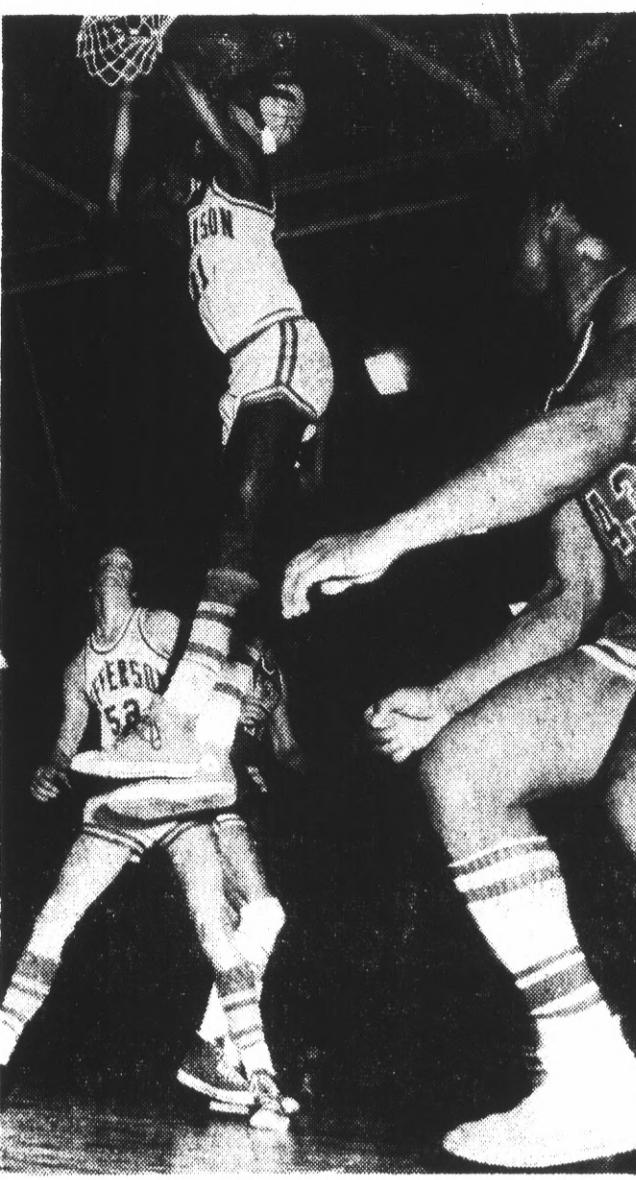

And after a rather even first half, Westmoor's height began to tell as they steadily moved away from Jefferson.

Jefferson actually is the most perfectly placed team in the tournament. They finished behind three teams they were 0-6 against and ahead of four other teams they were 8-0 against.

Rene Herrerias' coaching finale, capping 20 years in the colleges and prep schools, ended on a semi-sour note as his El Camino Comets dropped an overtime victory to the visiting Oceana Sharks. Neither team had any playoff hopes so the sentimental senior lineups prevailed, with Camino's Rich Wright getting 23 and Rudy Castellanos adding 15 for EC.

The Sharks' underclass front line had too much depth all around, however, as Steve Broadway, who got 14 points, hit two quick buckets to open the second period and put the game out of reach.

Terra Nova, shooting as it hadn't all year, ran off a 27-point second period and downed Half Moon Bay 75-70. JMB's offense came directly from Peter Peterson and Ron Stockman, who combined for 42 points.

Bulldogs Face League Leader

College of San Mateo, whose 22-game losing streak is the longest in the state junior college basketball ranks, faces league-leading City College of San Francisco tonight at 8 o'clock in San Francisco.

The hosts are 10-2 in the Golden Gate Conference with Laney after losing to the Eagles last Saturday night.

CSM, 0-12 in the GGC and 2-23 overall, closes the season against seventh place San Jose City College in San Jose Friday night.

The Bulldogs, who have won only five games in three seasons, still have something to cheer about. Bob Wright is the conference's leading scorer with a 26.4 average, well ahead of Merritt's Ron Gibson (118) finished fourth.

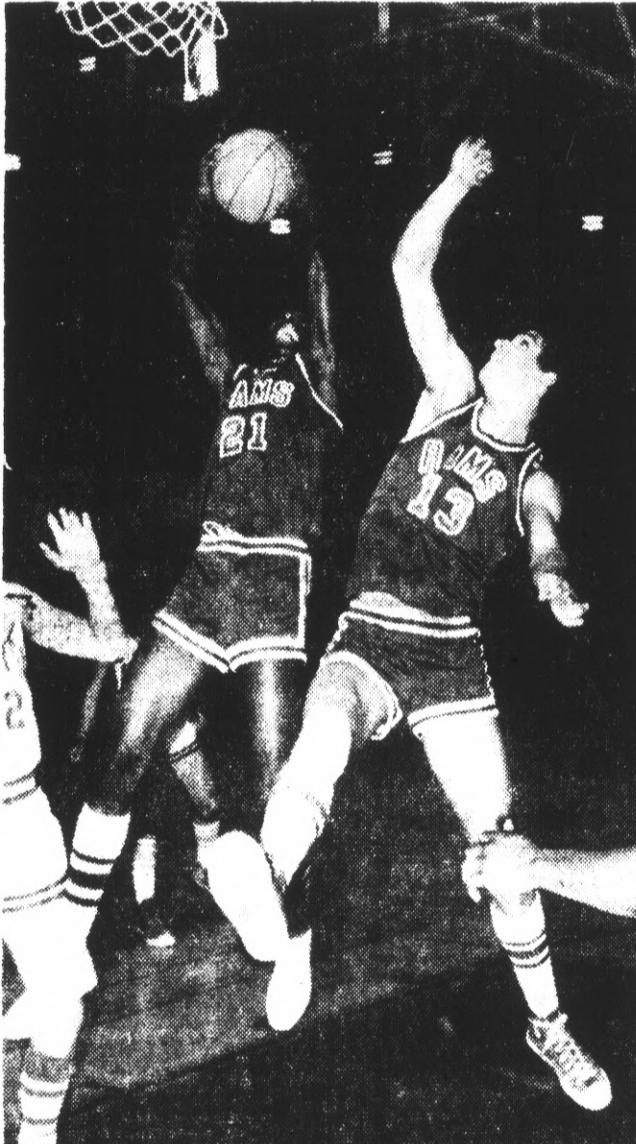

Canada College had four top finishers, with Steve Medina (126), Nick Testa (134) and Pat Lucaturo (142) fourth and Dennis Doezel (190) third.

Team tournament results were Skyline 66½, De Anza 65, West Valley 56, Solano 45½, Santa Rosa 35, Marin 34, Canada 21 and Contra Costa 5.

Canada hosts the Northern California tourney next Saturday at 10 a.m.

Crestmoor beat Hillsdale in overtime 71-69 with a superb exhibition of shooting. San Mateo defeated Aragon by a point Feb. 13.

There wasn't much to figure out on Tuesday as the Falcons burned their foes, hitting 31 field goals. Crestmoor really deserved the win. They led the entire game up until the last 3:15 by as many as nine.

The last period was particularly hairy. The Falcons held a seven point edge going in. Hillsdale ran it down to one. Crestmoor upped it back to six at 61-55. The Knights then ran off eight straight, four by Rod Williams, to take their first lead. Steve Bow-

Crestmoor Pot-Shots Too Deadly

man tied it again and Williams' two free throws put Hillsdale back on top by two with 0:36 left.

The Knights threw up a 2-1-2 zone against Crestmoor's last shot attempt. With 17 ticks of the clock left, Jeff Kollmann gunned in a 20-footer to tie it. Hillsdale called time out. It was obvious who would take the shot — leading scorer Williams.

Williams got the ball with time running out and forced up an off-balance shot in which he bumped into Kollmann. Kollmann hit the deck and both benches were screaming for a foul. But no call was made and the game went into overtime.

The San Brunans ran off the first six tallies and were up 71-65 with 1:22 left. But the roof almost fell in. A Kevin McCoy field goal and one by Williams brought the Knights to within two.

They were forced to foul Kollmann. He had just finished sinking two pressure-packed free tosses. But he missed this one with 16 seconds to go. Hillsdale wasn't dead yet. Once again it was obvious who would take the shot, or so it seemed.

But Williams couldn't get the ball this time and Carl McIntyre was forced to shoot a 15-footer which missed, as did two tips, and the place went crazy.

THE POST

Kollmann took Williams one-on-one the whole game while the other Falcons played a diamond. Kollmann finished with 20 tallies as did teammate Keith Larsen. But Bowman was high man with 23.

McCoy was high for the game with 24. Williams, almost not a factor, was next with 19 and Mike Arburn had 18. Hot Rod only had five tallies going into the final period. It was instrumental in bringing Hillsdale back into the game.

Half Moon Bay Is Defeated by Serramonte High

Serramonte beat Half Moon Bay 57-40, and second place South San Francisco kept in contention for at least 50 per cent of the title by running by El Camino 64-45.

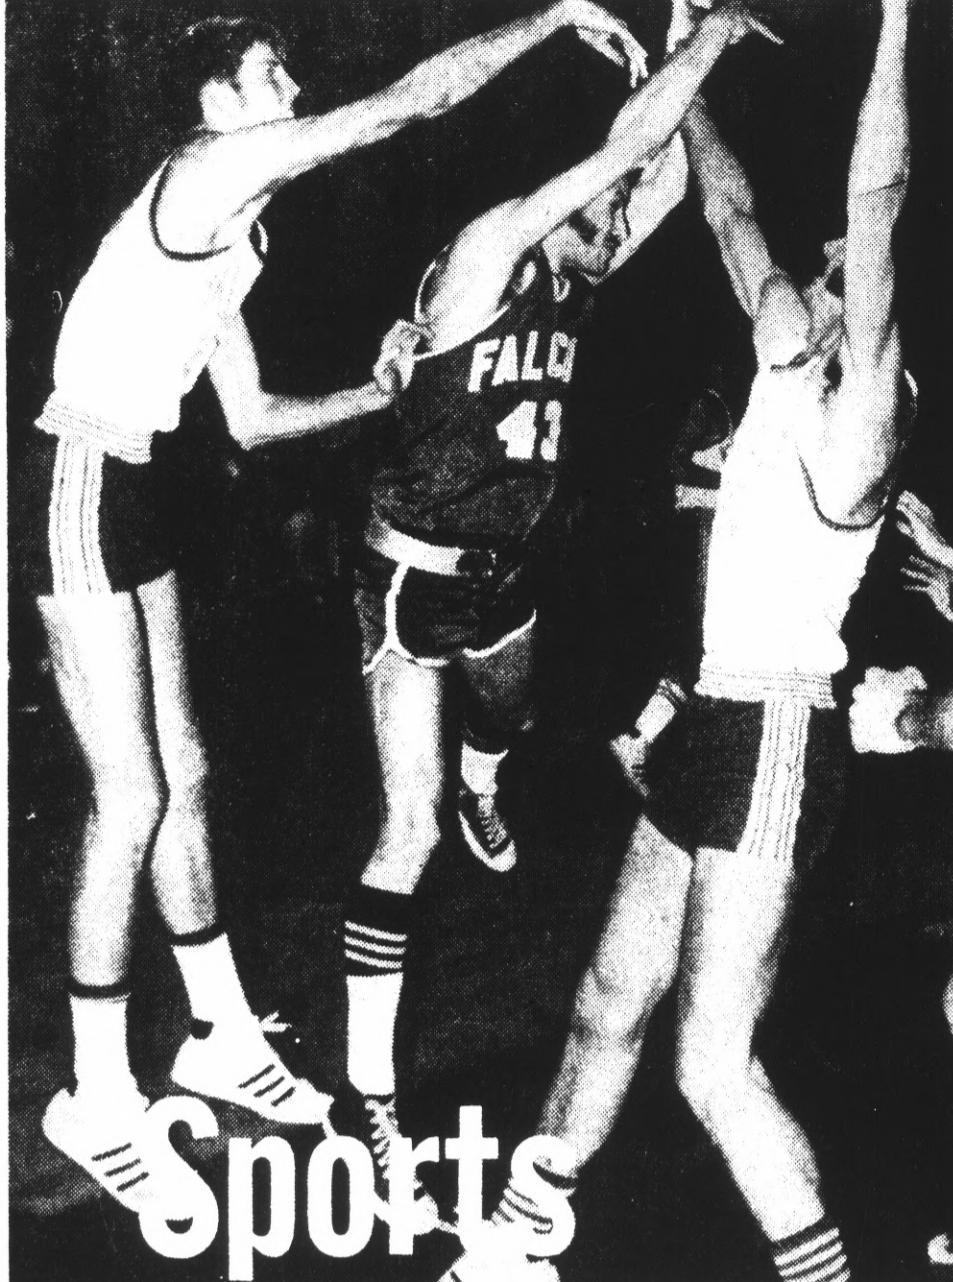

Half Moon Bay had trailed only 27-24 at the break but went ice cold the entire second half while Serramonte hit its first five floor shots to break the game open in the third quarter.

The Warriors, meanwhile, got a little revenge last night and have now beaten every team in the league at least once. Camino had downed the Warriors in their first meeting and the way things started last night, the Warriors again appeared in deep trouble.

South City trailed 10-5 at the quarter, hitting one of 13 floor shots. But substitute guard John McKeon came off the bench, got the Warriors fast break rolling as it hasn't in the past few games and SSF rebounded from a 14-5 deficit to take a 21-14 lead heading toward intermission.

Camino's downfall apparently began when the Colts tried to run with the Warriors. Pressing full court effectively after intermission, the Warriors, behind Mason Larkin's ballhandling, punched the lead up until it reached a 24-point margin. The game was rather physical, witness 44 foul shots, but were it not for the resurgence of the Warrior guards, South City may have been playing tomorrow's game merely for the record.

Both Westmoor and Jefferson, already assured of playoff spots, also won, although last place Terra Nova gave the Indians all they could handle before Jeff managed a 55-52 victory in Daly City.

Junior forward Terry Richards laps a zone on Norman, left, in the win for the Indians in a game that saw neither team score 16 and was the Richards alone too often. Harold Norman scored a free throw by Bruce Olmanson the other way. Rich Bjoerkel led the Indians with 18 but the Tigers, col. in the last minute of play iced Tigers with 18.

THERE'S NO BUSINESS LIKE OUR BUSINESS!

You've got a hit in your hands! We're talking about the Want Ad section of today's Times. If you'll pardon us for showing you our clippings, we hit 351,409 ads last year . . . a record run of result-producing performance that reached daily audiences of over 129,000 and drew rave reviews from those of you who caught our act.

If all the world's a stage and all the men and women merely players then certainly one of the better scenes in this universal production has to be the Want Ads, because no other advertising medium can match the far-reaching availability to so many of these "actors."

To those of you who took part in the big show last year, we ask you to step up and take a bow as we thank you for making our year a success. And we then extend to those others to join the cast this year as we "go on with the show" with high hopes of extending our run to new records in 1973!

The price of admission is so low . . . and all the seats are front row center when you use the Want Ads.

In 1972 THE TIMES also published a RECORD BREAKING amount of Classified Lineage . . . 4,715,382 Lines and The Weekly Newspapers — THE SAN BRUNO PUBLICATIONS and THE POST also reached a new all time high of 2,011,226 lines, making a combined total of

Pets Here Are Like Pop Bottles; Aged Forced to Give Them Up

"It's really a shame, but people discard their pets like they do disposable pop bottles," said Jeff Bell, shelter superintendent at the Peninsula Humane Society's Coyote Point Shelter.

"Just look around; right now we have two bassets, a collie, an Irish setter, several labs, a great German shorthair pointer, some beagles, lots of poodles and variety of really cut mixtures, not to mention many puppies," he said.

"All of them are beautiful, intelligent dogs. Then there are the cats and kittens — cute, playful, serene, all temperaments. And, it's like this every day."

Jeff Cooke, assistant shelter superintendent at Coyote Point and the South San Francisco shelter, concurs.

"Some people forget that a puppy turns into a dog and that kittens turn into cats. They don't want to be bothered with things like medical shots, or training their pets."

"After the pet outgrows its puppyhood or even before that, they give him to us hoping we'll find a new home for him. That's the real shame, because the puppy or kitten is just becoming dependent on its owner's and is just then reaching the trainable stage," Cooke said.

What grieves Redwood City Superintendent Rich Ward so much is when some people bring mature dogs to his shelter wanting to "trade them in" for something larger, smaller, quieter, more threatening or a different color.

A common complaint from new pet owners is their puppy, just ten weeks old, is not housebroken yet. "Pets don't stand a chance with people like that," said Ward.

"Of course, there are legitimate reasons for having to give up pets," he added. "The most prevalent reason in San Mateo County occurs when a family moves into an apartment and the building doesn't allow pets. Many older couples are caught in this situation."

"Forced to move into apartments for many different reasons, they don't want to give up their poodle or terrier or fluffy cat, but they have to. Those are the ones I feel sorry for, because their pets are just like children to them," Ward said.

Much of the pet problem stems from the growing pet population explosion. It is becoming severe.

Nationally, more than 35 million puppies and 50 million kittens are born each year. This is about 165 a minute, and most of them are unwanted. Beyond that, some 15-20 million cats and dogs are turned into city pounds.

Chapter Post For S.M. Woman

Mrs. Luanna Blackton of San Mateo has been elected president of the San Mateo County chapter of Muscular Dystrophy Association of America for 1973.

Other officers elected for the current year by the county executive committee were: Kermit E. Vangene, first vice president, San Mateo; John Hazelwood, second vice president, Belmont; Myrtle Hobbs, secretary, Palo Alto; and James L. Laherty, treasurer, San Mateo.

and private animal shelters. Only 25 percent are claimed or placed in new homes. The rest can only be kept a short time.

"We're always crowded; we always have full kennels," Bell said. "That means we have well over 250 puppies and dogs every day in our three shelters, and usually over 150 cats and kittens. What really depresses us, though, is the numbers of puppies and kittens that come in every day. In spring and summer they come by the boxful; sometimes we receive hundreds a day. We can't possibly find homes for them all. Why don't people spend the money to have their pets spayed or neutered or at least keep them controlled so there won't be all these unwanted litters of puppies and kittens?"

"Some people don't realize a pet is a responsibility; that it needs shots, should be altered, needs to be exercised daily, eventually help the pet population problem. We're working on the problem from our end, hoping our new shelter building program will raise enough money to enable us to better house our pets," Ward said. "Until then, we just try to make their lives as good as possible while they are with us."

Unbeaten Vikings Winners, Not Robots

By CHRISTOPHER STAVE
The tall, talented young men who have just taken Mills High to its second straight unbeaten MPL basketball season have been saddled with an unfair image.

It was not one of their own making. But as they got closer and closer in that twenty-fourth straight regular season win, outsiders began to notice a minimum of that grinning, back-slapping, tooth-gritting intensity of emotion that seems to characterize other winners.

So the Vikings became known as an icewater team, mechanical and emotionless. The chief robot was supposed to be 6-6 forward Don Weaver, an outstanding player who is thought never to have cracked a smile on court.

Now the Vikings probably don't take all this talk very seriously — especially after last night's 73-55 win over Crestmoor that notched that twenty-fourth straight win — but the image should be set right.

The Viking starters are seniors and have seen a lot of wins. They've been playing good basketball together for a long time. They play together in the off-season. During the season they spend many, many hours in each other's company at school.

Film Showing of Lamaze Method Of Childbirth

The public is invited to a film showing on the Lamaze Method of Childbirth March 2, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Episcopalian Church of Transfiguration, parish hall, 39th and Alameda, San Mateo.

Another film showing is scheduled for April 13, 1973, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the South San Francisco Public Library, 840 West Orange Ave., South San Francisco.

The films to be shown are entitled "The Story of Eric," "The Story of Childbirth," and "A Shared Beginning." Donations fifty cents requested.

For further information call 345-7877, 592-5687 or 349-0123.

The film showing is sponsored by the American Society for Prophylactics in Obstetrics (ASPO).

Firm Plans New Plant

Tornberg Metal Products, Inc., a manufacturer of night deposit and drive-in bank windows, has purchased a 52,000 square-foot land parcel in the Cabot, Cabot & Forbes South San Francisco Office-Industrial Park. The company plans to build a new plant on the site which will replace its current manufacturing facilities in San Francisco.

According to Donald N. Tornberg, company president, the firm chose the South San Francisco park location because of the excellent view of the bay and the hard ground. Construction of the plant is expected to be underway on March 1.

Molestation; Jail Parolee

A Millbrae man was arrested in Burlingame last week on charges of molesting two children in a darkened theater, and violating terms of his parole.

Robert L. Davis, 41, 547 Bayview Avenue, was booked at Burlingame police headquarters after being picked up near Ukiah by his parole officer.

Police say Davis is charged with having molested two children, a boy of 8 and a girl of 10, in a downtown theater during the past month.

The day after the second incident, police report, Davis left his job and left the county without notice to his parole officer, thereby violating terms of his parole from an earlier conviction.

DFC AWARD

DA Y.A. Taiwan — U.S. Air Force Sergeant Richard S. Buzzell, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Buzzell of 1200 Helen Drive, Millbrae, has received the Distinguished Flying Cross (DFC) and his first and second awards of the Air Medal for aerial achievement in Southeast Asia.

Because the Vikings' attitude toward basketball is a trifle different from other teams — they know they're going to score points and pull out the close games, so they don't need to pull high-jinx when it happens — does not mean that they don't care.

Last night front line starters Tom MacKenzie and Bruce Delfante permitted themselves a quick grin as they came off court. Even Weaver may have smiled. They weren't needed, since Crestmoor couldn't overcome the dual handicap of relatively small stature and very cold shooting hands.

There was a minimum of howling and towel-tossing in the locker room afterward . . . but there was a continuation of the same sort of happy satisfaction they've had the whole season long. "This is How-ard Co-sell," blared one, imitating the acid

"I just want to get out of this," he said, referring to the upcoming MPL scramble.

"After that, outside the league, it's all gravy. I'm really going to enjoy this. This bunch is just a pleasure to watch."

So much for the icewater.

Ninth Straight for Serra High Hoopsters

After clinching the West Catholic Athletic League round-robin title, Serra High's basketball team probably could have taken things a bit easy Friday.

That wasn't the case though, as the Padres closed out their most successful regular season in history with a come-from-behind 53-51 overtime win over Mitty in Santa Clara.

Junior forward Ron Jackson grabbed a rebound off a missed free throw and came back with a score to give Serra a clinching 53-49 lead with ten seconds left in the extra period.

Padre coach Jim Brovelli didn't go with his starting lineup until 6:50 remained in the game. Before then, with only occasional substituting of regular starters, reserves had held their own against a Monarch first team currently rated seventh in the Central Coast Section.

Center Jim Gannon, forwards Joe Appenrodt (an off the bench hero in Wednesday's overtime win over Sacred Heart) and Tom Fanucci, and guards Woody Wilson and Tim Walsh got their first starts of the season.

That lineup fought its way to a 12-9 first quarter lead. Walsh scored six points and held Tay Townsend, the WCAL's leading scorer, to just one point in the period.

Serra, which finishes regular season play at 10-2 in WCAL play and 19-3 overall, now advances to the league playoffs next Friday night where the Padres will have to be beaten twice for elimination. Serra has won nine straight after starting the WCAL season at 1-2.

Ask Cab Fare Increase

The San Mateo city Public Works Commission will recommend a 10-cent per one-seventh mile increase for local cab fares.

The preliminary decision was made after a public hearing earlier this week.

At present cab passengers pay 60-cents for the first quarter mile, explained Public Works Director Robert Bezzant. If the City Council accepts the PWC's recommendation, the fare will go to 70-cents for the first one-seventh of a mile, plus an additional 10-cents for each seventh of a mile thereafter.

However, the Commission delayed a decision on a request from Donald Lirette, of the Towne Cab. He has a one-man-one-cab operation and is asking for seven more.

His competitors are protesting. They told the Commissioners there isn't enough business now, particularly during the summer. Winters bring higher usage. A spokesman for Bel-Mateo Enterprises, which operates the local Yellow Cabs said only 12 out of 19 cabs are used. At the same time it was reported that in buying the business, he paid $9,000 for 19 cab permits. Of that, about $4,000 is expressed in the value of the cab, radio, meter, other equipment.

Rites Held for Pacifica Soldier Who Drowned

With the family still in the dark over how death came, funeral services were held Tuesday for Joseph V. Arellano, 19, member of last year's Oceana High School varsity football team.

All his mother, Angela Arellano, knew, late yesterday, was that her son had drowned February 10 while on active duty with the United States Army on Johnson Island, a tiny atoll 400

N. County Circulation Aide Dies

Alex Sirven, 49, circulation manager of the San Bruno Herald, Recorder-Progress and Coastside Chronicle, died Monday night at Chope General Hospital, San Mateo. Sirven had been at work Saturday, and was rushed to the hospital for a pancreatic ailment. He had been ailing for at least three weeks. An autopsy was scheduled for this morning.

He had been circulation manager of the three publications since 1969, and was reappointed to the post when the Amphlett Printing Co. purchased the newspapers in 1970. He had previously been circulation manager of the Menlo Park Recorder.

He is survived by one daughter, Michelle, 17, and his sister, Martha Withe of Mountain View. He lived at 1440 Kentfield, Redwood City.

Sirven was born and reared in France. He owned a hotel in Martinique, and came to the United States about 20 years ago. He had lived in California for 12 years. He fulfilled a long-time ambition last summer in a vacation to France, where he revisited the scene of his childhood.

Funeral services are pending.

2 Joyriders Arrested at Auto Agency

A reported explosion at the Dick Bullis Chevrolet Agency, 100 California Drive, Burlingame, Monday, resulted in the arrest of two small boys who had been joy-riding with ears inside the closed building, police say.

The lads 9 and 12 years old, admitted climbing through a broken window and driving four cars around.

The youngest boy, said the police report, admitted driving a 1973 station wagon which slammed into a garage door, causing the noise that neighbors thought was an explosion.

Police said damage to the car was about $600, and damage to the garage door totaled about $900.

The estimated $5,000 balance went to buy the business good-will and similar intangibles. The spokesman urged consideration be given to the investment factor if additional franchises are allowed.

The Luxor cab company has eight cabs and uses six, it was reported. The San Mateo Cab company has four.

Lirette has said the increase is not needed and he is anxious to add to his operation, providing additional jobs.

Lirette's competitors said they can only get about $150 a week, which is split with the driver. Tips go to the driver. They argued against additional cabs. Decision was held over to the February 28 meeting.

The Commission referred to the police department a request from cab operators that checking of potential drivers to be expedited. One spokesman said it took 10 weeks in one case and qualified applicants don't wait around for the job. It was suggested an interim clearance be given after a check in Sacramento with various bureaus, and final clearance in Washington, D.C. would follow.

In preliminary consideration of a policy allowing more car wash operations in conjunction with major gas companies, the commission decided it needed more information. Cab Wash operators and others will be asked to attend the next meeting, February 28 to give the commission needed information.

The Commission agreed to take a tour and asked for aerial photographs of the Third Avenue Bridge-Sea Slough corridor road. It is posing a difficult traffic problem for bicyclists and pedestrians, Director Bezzant reported. Because of the narrowness of the road, cyclists and pedestrians face auto hazards. The city does permit access across its pumping plant area and through city dump property, but beyond that there is no where to go.

Police Sergeant Kenneth Brooks said the department is having difficulty with speeders using the road, and periodic traffic enforcement is applied to curb them. But, he said, it isn't possible to assign one man full time to the one roadway.

Bezzant informed the commission on the status of the water company purchase citizens' study committee (to be set up). He also detailed latest data on the proposed BART extension from the International Airport south to Menlo Park. It is presently in draft form and will be considered by the Citizens-City Managers committee and the Technical Advisory Committee, preparatory to presentation in final form to the San Mateo county Transit Development board.

Multimedia

SSF Educational Fillip

Brothers Bob and Dick Nicolopulos are combining efforts to present something special in the way of education for the students of Parkway Junior High School in South San Francisco Friday from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The day will be given to exploring a new communications technique and through it the worlds of San Francisco's Chinatown, the native American and law enforcement.

The technique is multimedia — slides, films, tapes and records, coordinated into an audiovisual experience projected on three screens simultaneously.

Friday at Parkway there will be three presentations of MM, courtesy of Bob Nicolopulos, who teaches English and history, and Principal Angelo Caraccioli and is being repeated this Friday.

The students involved are using the facilities of the USF Instructional Media Department.

recently at the University of San Francisco, in developing a new means of communication in the classroom that has educators interested at all levels.

The Chinatown feature peers into the interior of sewing shops where Chinese immigrants, hired at low wages, turn out garments for the U.S. fashion trade. The one on Native Americans deals, in non-narrative style, with the plight of America's first inhabitants, whose survivors are caught between assimilation into white culture and a desire to preserve what remains of their own.

Both productions were created at USF students in a course called "Ethnic Expression Through Multimedia." It was taught last fall by Dick Nicolopulos, who has specialized for several years.

recently at the University of San Francisco, in developing a new means of communication in the classroom that has educators interested at all levels.

Two Youths Arrested

South San Francisco police nabbed two youths in the act of burglarizing a home, they reported last week.

They received a call from a local resident who said he saw someone breaking into the rear of the home of Robert Healy, Toyon Avenue. Within a minute officers had the house surrounded. Three officers entered the home, and found two boys, both local residents aged 16, carrying items they apparently took in the house. Included were coins, a radio, vials of medicine and a pint of whiskey. The entire house was in disarray where burglars apparently conducted their search.

WESTMOOR GRAD SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — Airman Bruce A. Watts, son of Mr. and Mrs. U. Watts of 1764 Sweetwood Drive, Colma, has been assigned to Chanute AFB, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

The airman has been assigned to the Technical Training Center at Chanute for specialized training.

Gerald T. Ferrari, of San Mateo, has been appointed manager of the Millbrae office of Bay View Federal Savings and Loan Association. For the past three years, he has been the manager of the association's office in South San Francisco.

CHICO Chico is reported to produce 20 per cent of the world's almonds.
